Editorial COMMENTARY

by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher

Art World Changing

Seven years ago Carolina Arts transitioned from the print media world to the Internet - not because we were tech savvy, but for survival. The recession of 2008 dropped a heavy hammer on the art world and our advertising supporters. First we had to drop our color cover and go back to being totally black and white, then gas prices reached to $4.50+ a gallon, so our Dec. 2010 issue was our last issue in print. By the end of 2011, our first year totally online, we realized it was the best thing that could have happened for us.

Being online meant we could be full color for the entire publication, it cost no more to be a 10 page issue compared to a 100 page issue, distribution costs disappeared, and the one issue we produced could be downloaded to anyone's computer, and eventually smart phone or tablet from anywhere and anyone on the internet. We also could cover every part of the Carolinas who communicated with us by our deadline. What wasn't there to like about being online?

I missed traveling around the Carolinas and some people who refused to transition to the new tech world were left behind. Then came social media. Today is a different world.

Nowadays art, artists and art exhibits are promoted on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and any of dozens and dozens of other mediums communicating on the Internet.

So when the SC Watermedia Society, SC's largest visual arts organization, announced its first digital show, replacing their annual show held somewhere in SC - it wasn't a shock at all to us.

The SC Watermedia Society (SCWS) is presenting its first Nationwide Digital Show, on view through Nov. 25, 2017, at the Charleston International Airport, Best of Show "Distracted" by Lynn Schilling, Watercolor, $1000 - Artists in Florence Sponsors Best In Show Memorial Award Honoring Jack Dowis.

located in North Charleston, SC.

This show was a first of its kind for the Society, a hybrid of modern technology and their traditional museum show. Open to artists across the nation, this show offered all entries the opportunity to be exhibited online for one year.

Internationally known artist Linda Baker judged the exhibition, which features 157 water-based media artists from across the nation. Please enjoy viewing the full show at this link (<https://scwatermedia.com/2017-digital-show/>).

The link to the exhibition catalog is (<https://scwatermedia.com/wp-content/uploads/2017/10/2017-FINAL-catalog.pdf>).

Offering you these links to go to further electronic information instantly with a click would not be possible in a print version of our publication.

But the bottom line is - we wouldn't still be publishing if not for going online.

City of North Charleston, SC, Features Works by Penny Beesley

The City of North Charleston's Cultural Arts Department will present Earnest Endeavor, a solo exhibition of abstract works by Penny Beesley of Beaufort, SC, on display at the North Charleston City Gallery, located in the Charleston Area Convention Center, in North Charleston, SC, from Nov. 2 - 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 2, from 5-7pm.

Beesley presents a collection of mixed media works influenced by abstract expressionism. She uses a spontaneous approach that involves scraps of paper inspired by her environment, acrylic paint, and mark making.

"I like to work in a series of three to five structures - either canvas, panel, or paper. I begin by energizing the surface without thought, only motion, and as shapes and designs come together, I pause, listen to music, walk away for a while, then return," she explains. Beesley revisits and interacts with her pieces several times, incorporating different processes in order to bring cohesion and closure to the composition. Using her intuition, she works to balance color, juxtaposition of shapes, and negative space.

Beesley was raised in a family that valued art. Throughout her childhood, she often spent her free time at her father's elbow in his studio. She earned a BFA from Eastern Michigan University in Ceramics and Painting and her work has been widely displayed in the Southeast. Both the La Petite Gallery in Bluffton, SC, and the Society of Bluffton Artists Gallery display her pieces permanently.

The North Charleston City Gallery is situated in two corridors of the northwest corner of the Charleston Area Convention Center, located on Coliseum Drive in North Charleston. Inquiries regarding the artists or purchase information may be directed to the North Charleston Cultural Arts Department at 843/740-5854.

For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings or visit the Arts & Culture section of the City's website at (www.northcharleston.org).

you view this new body of work. From the light filled color notes of "Taking Flight" to the drama of "Spring Palette", Versteegen unveils the majesty found in color and light. Her use of rich, vibrant color gives the viewer a selective impression of a scene. Through the use of oil paint she expresses her feelings about the subject and the time of day. Color notes taken from her plein air paintings and nature are her inspiration. Working outdoors en plein air allows the artist to gather information for her paintings first hand.

Versteegen moved to Charleston County in 2006, after traveling the world teaching art and painting. Her work exhibits an international flair for she has lived in Brazil, Holland and Spain. Versteegen has been blessed by immediate acceptance into the art community of Charleston with solo exhibits, awards and purchase prizes from the City of Charleston, as well as the North Charleston Arts Council.

Recently, Versteegen was selected to

The Charleston Museum in Charleston, SC, Features New Exhibition of Quilts

The Charleston Museum in Charleston, SC, is presenting Piece by Piece: Geometric Quilts, on view in the Textile Gallery, through May 31, 2017.

This exhibition will continue the Museum's program of featuring themed historic quilts from its extensive collection. This is the second installment of the exhibition and will consist of quilts with geometric designs.

Different shapes and piecing techniques have traditionally been mainstays of the quilting craft. From magnificent stars to traditional nine-patch, these quilts will also include clever hexagons of English paper-template piecing along with log cabins, flying geese, chimney sweeps and even a few crazy quilts. With their creative use of shapes, patterns and design, these eye-catching historic pieces represent true works of art that will appeal to both the quilter and non-quilter alike.

Selections will include a Stars & Diamonds paper template pieced quilt from 1852 made by Marina Jones Gregg and for which Gregg won an award for Best Quilt from the Southern Central Agricultural Society. Visitors can also view a Star of Bethlehem quilt, c. mid 19th century, in which the star appears to be vibrating as well as a Drunkard's Path quilt, c. 1900, whose pattern creates a meandering black pathway.

A 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, The Charleston Museum, founded in 1773, is America's first museum. Holding the most extensive collection of South Carolina cultural and scientific materials in the nation, it also owns two National Historic Landmark houses, the Heyward-Washington House (1772) and the Joseph Manigault House (1803), as well as the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve.

For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings or visit (www.charlestonmuseum.org).

Ella Walton Richardson Fine Art in Charleston, SC, will present John C. Traynor - An American Impressionist, on view from Nov. 3 - 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 3, from 5-8pm.

John C. Traynor was born on October 19, 1961. He spent his early years in Chester and Mendham, NJ. His art studies began at Delbarton School in Morristown NJ; from there he went to Paier College of Art in New Haven CT, starting at the age of 16. He studied figure painting at the Art Students League of New York, as a merit scholar, with Frank Mason, as well as landscape painting with Mason in Vermont. Traynor followed his studies with Mason by spending a year studying sculpture in Italy.

Having completed his studies by the time he was 20 years old, Traynor was determined to become a professional artist. As an unknown artist he started selling his paintings at outdoor art shows, in the Northeast where he was able to meet collectors in person. This exposure opened opportunities with galleries

Traynor has won numerous awards including the Frank Dumont award from the Hudson Valley Art Association and the Medal of Honor from the Salmagundi Club of which he is an honorary member. Traynor was also recently inducted into the Delbarton School Hall of Honors and he has reached the level of Copley Master from the Copley Society of Boston.

Traynor has made numerous painting expeditions to Ireland as well as trips to Holland, Italy, France, Hawaii and many locations across the United States. He currently resides in southern New Hampshire in a quaint New England village with his wife Liz. Their home is surrounded by many gardens that inspire his paintings.

Work by John C. Traynor

Traynor is a skilled painter of every genre: landscape, still life and portraiture. His unique blend of realism and atmospheric impressionism set his work apart. Many people can recognize a "Traynor painting" by its brush strokes and unique feeling. Part of his success is connecting emotionally with others through his work. People are often reminded of moments in their life or memories of the past.

Traynor is inspired by the nature he sees around him whether it is the flowers from his gardens, people in his life or the landscape outdoors. Traynor's interpretation of his subject matter is influenced from artists of the past. His use of light and atmospheric effect are found in many of the old master paintings such as the American tonality painters and the French Impressionist artists. There is a richness and fullness to his work that is 'old world' yet contemporary with his unique style.

Corrigan Gallery in Charleston, SC, Offers Work by Elizabeth O'Neill Verner

Corrigan Gallery in Charleston, SC, will present Elizabeth O'Neill Verner: Works from the Estate, on view from Nov. 1 - 28, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 3, from 5-8pm.

Corrigan Gallery, in conjunction with the Estate of Elizabeth O'Neill Verner, presents an exhibition of Verner's work in its new location at 7 Broad Street.

A native of Charleston, Elizabeth Quale O'Neill Verner (1833-1979) was an artist and preservationist. Daughter of a prosperous rice factor, Verner's early life was one of privilege lasting until her return to Charleston at the time of her father's death. Her artistic gifts were encouraged and developed by her maternal grandfather, Henry Franklin Baker, who had been a student at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts.

Her images of Charleston architecture and portraiture are widely recognized for their skill and authenticity, and for capturing the spirit of Charleston. She began her studies with Alice Ravenel Huger Smith and continued at the Pennsylvania Academy in Philadelphia beginning in 1901 for two years with noted instructor, Thomas Anshutz. She then taught art in Aiken, South Carolina, before returning to Charleston.

In 1907, she married and raised two children. She pursued art in her spare time. In 1923, she began etching and soon opened a studio where she produced fine art prints. She became best known for her drawings, pastels and etchings of the city of Charleston. She became an able portraitist and figurative painter, recognized for representing African American subjects in ennobled likenesses. She may be the most known South Carolina female artist of the twentieth century.

Verner was a founder of the Charleston Sketch Club and the Charleston Etching Club in 1921. She was on the board of the Southern States Art League from 1922 to 1933. She participated in the International Exhibition of the Chicago Society of Etchers in these early years. The death of her husband in 1925 meant finding a method of support, which she did by seeking out commissions for her work. A commission focused on the historic preservation of Savannah, which inspired her fervor for such throughout the region. Other commissions were from the Mount Vernon Ladies Association; Rockefeller Center; Historic Williamsburg; the City of Fayetteville; Harvard Medical School; the United States Military Academy; Princeton University; and the University of South Carolina, to portray their buildings and grounds in drawings and etchings.

In 1930, she studied etching at the Central School of Art in London, and in 1937, visited Japan where she learned sumi painting (brush painting with black ink). In 1934, she began working in pastel after seeing an exhibition in Boston of the floral pastels of Laura Coombs Hills. She developed a method of working in pastel on raw silk glued to a wooden support.

Verner continued to travel visiting the Caribbean and Mexico often painting from those experiences. She was a book illustrator for Dubose Heyward's Porgy and part of founding the Charleston Society of Etchers and the Southern States Art League. There are several books of her own including Prints and Impressions, Mellowed by Time, The Stonewall Ladies and Other Places.

Considered the matriarch of the Charleston Renaissance, which flourished during the 1900s to 1950s, Verner, with Alice Smith, Anna Heyward Taylor and Alfred Hutty, was the center of an art colony in Charleston. In recognition of her contribution to the arts, the state of South Carolina named a prestigious annual art award after her. There is a visiting artist's studio at the Gibbes Museum of Art named for her. Her works are represented in the collections of national institutions such as the Metropolitan Museum of Art and Smithsonian American Art Museum, as well as leading museums across the Southeast.

Anglin Smith Fine Art in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Colin Page

Anglin Smith Fine Art in Charleston, SC, will present Colin Page - New Works, on view from Nov. 3 - 19, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 3, from 5-8pm.

Colin Page was raised in Baltimore, MD, and studied painting at the Rhode Island School of Design and at the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art.

"RISD gave me a foundation in color theory, design, composition, and long days of figure drawing in my first year," says Page. "I am grateful for my education at both of those schools, but one of the reasons I loved plein air painting after I got out of school is I learned a lot more about paint mixing and paint handling and trying to capture light when I was painting outdoors. And I am still learning more about making strong paintings by doing it on location than I did in school. But the initial appeal was to not be stuck in a studio. I liked painting from life. Also, because you have to paint so fast, you are forced to find more gestural and personal brushwork. And any time you paint from life, you get a richness of color that you can't get from a photograph."

Whether working on location or in the studio, Page strives to capture the atmosphere and light of a scene. He currently lives in Maine, where he focuses on painting the landscape, and scenes that show his life as a father of two young girls. His work has been featured in solo exhibitions and group shows nationally and abroad.

Recently Page participated in a panel discussion at the Farnsworth Museum of Art, and was the winner of the People's Choice Award at the Door County Plein Air Festival, in Door County, WI. This is Page's second solo exhibition here at Anglin Smith Fine Art.

Anglin Smith Fine Art has been known for color for 17 years. Page is certainly no stranger to that, it is what drew Anglin Smith to his work. His work has graced the cover of an L.L. Bean catalog as well as Charleston's very own Art Mag. His new works, will include paintings from his beloved Maine as well as Charleston.

Page will be plein air painting in the area leading up to his show and will certainly have plenty of wet canvases hanging.

Shannon Smith Hughes and Jennifer Smith Rogers recently painted in Maine and Page joined them for two days of painting. We are excited to feature their plein air paintings in the gallery during his show. Betty Anglin Smith will also show Slater has always called the South Georgia coast her home. Native to Savannah, her fondest memories include beach days on Tybee Island, crabbing from the family dock on the Grove River, enjoying oyster roasts with family and friends and meandering on Calhoun Street in Bluffton with her dad on Saturdays.

Slater's artistic venture, Meyer Slater, is in part named after her maternal grandmother, Rebecca Felton Meyer, who taught Slater the love of the coast.

"It is my goal to bring a piece of coastal nature inside everyone's home through works of art - in homage to my grandmother and all that she was to so many," Slater said.

Main & Maxwell in Greenwood, SC, Offers Group Show by Member Artists

Main & Maxwell in Greenwood, SC, will present an exhibit of works by member artists including: Barbara Warner, Elizabeth Snipes Rochester, Phyllis Anne Pesce, and Colleen McGhee, on view from Nov. 8 - 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 14, from 5:30-7pm.

Ceramic artists, Barbara Warner studied with a Native American Medicine Woman Shaman for over twelve years. During that time, she connected with the respect and love for all creation which is at the core of Native American spirituality. Since she began working with clay she has been drawn to bring this spirit of love and respect into her work. She is well known for her organic coil built and embellished clay vessels. Her vessels are the essence of the spirituality she so strongly connects with.

Work by Barbara Warner

Elizabeth Snipes-Rochester is originally from Pickens, SC. She received her BA in Studio Art in 2003 from Furman University then attended Studio Art Centers International in Florence, Italy, where she received her Post-Baccalaureate Certificate in painting. Snipes-Rochester earned her MFA from Clemson University in 2007 and taught as Assistant Professor of Art in the painting and drawing area at Missouri State University before beginning her current position as Associate Professor of Art, teaching painting and drawing, at Lander University in Greenwood. She works in a range of 2-dimensional media that includes acrylic, oil, pencil, and pastel on paper, panel, or canvas.

Work by Anne Pesce

Also participating in the show are Phyllis Anne Pesce and Colleen McGhee. Pesce is a former elementary and high school art teacher. In describing her current work, she refers to the philosophy of Art as: art reflects nature and nature reflects art. Pesce has worked in a variety of media and produces photographs, functional ceramics, sculptures, and primitives. Her current work focuses on the art of Zentangle.

The Zentangle method is based on the act of drawing pattern and filling those patterns in with more pattern. It has been used by people as a form of self-help art therapy due to the meditative quality of sketching repeating designs. While some Zentangle artists use colors, this method traditionally sticks to black ink. It allows the artist to focus on the patterns instead of color composition. Pesce's Zentangle patterns often reflect her love of nature and sea life.

Colleen McGhee was born and raised in Greenwood and grew up attending the local public schools. She graduated from Lander University in 2014 with a BS in Visual Arts. Her current concentration is on clay and hand building. In addition, McGhee works as a freelance graphic designer. McGhee's work is often focused on functional objects. Her pieces are put together from torn and altered pieces of clay fulfilling her desire to find and repair flaws as she explores the beauty in imperfection.

Central United Methodist Church in Spartanburg, SC, Offers Pottery, Jewelry, & Bake Sale - Nov. 4, 2017

For the 13th year, a loose-knit group of artists and cooks will host a community sale of locally made pottery, jewelry, and baked goods at Central United Methodist Church in Spartanburg, SC, on Saturday, Nov. 4, 2017, from 9am-2pm. The annual event has recently been dubbed "Made By Hand & Heart."

"We've been doing this event now for 13 years," organizer and potter Nancy Williamson said. "It has become a staple of early Christmas shopping in Spartanburg, and we thought it was time to give ourselves a name and came up with 'Made By Hand & Heart.' It seems pretty appropriate considering everything we have to offer is made by hand and comes from the heart.

"This is one of those quaint little events where you can find big surprises," Williamson said. "We do take a lot of pride in the quality of our work, and a lot of community good is derived from it. Money from Joy Walker's jewelry is channeled to an overseas mission that provides goats to sustain impoverished people in Africa, and money from the bake sale helps to support a local program that feeds children here in Spartanburg."

The annual event began as a home sale in the garage of the late Jack Bundy, when a group of potters realized they were making more pottery than they could use. Friends and relatives came out to support the original artists by buying their wares. After a few years the event became popular, but there were too many items and too many patrons to accommodate Bundy's garage and residential street, so the event was moved to Central United Methodist to partner with Mary Martha Women's Circle. Bringing the pottery sale and the bake sale together proved to be an advantage for both groups, giving the potters much-needed space and a larger number of patrons for both. The jewelry was added later and also became popular with the public.

"Our first customers were our friends and family, and now the sale has grown so we see a lot of return customers," Williamson said. "We see folks who come back each and every year to buy an item from the same artist to give to a particular friend to enlarge their collection. Others come because some of the sales help buy goats for needy communities in Africa. Still others come because the Bethlehem Center reaps some benefits. This really touches my heart. I'm also touched to hear from the people who come back because they're using our pottery in their day-to-day lives and are happy with their purchases and want to add to their collection. We enjoy meeting the people, and we are there all day to talk about the work, and answer questions. And some come because of the food, which is wonderful."

Central's Mary Martha Women's Circle always has a wide variety of baked goods, like cakes, cookies, pies, and rolls. In addition, they will have frozen entrees, which are prepared in the church kitchen. The entrees will include the Circle's very popular "Special Turkey Tetrazzini" and "Baked Spaghetti Casserole." In addition, several different types of homemade soups, corn bread, and preserves will also be available.

"These entrees are treasures for the freezer to pull out for a quick meal during the busy holiday season — and the prices are very reasonable," another organizer and potter Patsy Simmons said. "Proceeds from the bake sale help support the Bethlehem Center, a mission project of the Women Circle. The funds raised make it possible to feed the children in the after-school program at the center once a month."

Artist Joy Walker will offer "repurposed" jewelry for sale. She collects old jewelry from friends and acquaintances and gives it a new life by reworking into necklaces, bracelets, earrings, pins, rings, and many one-of-a-kind pieces. She uses the money from her sales to pay her blessings forward. Walker immigrated to the US from Northern Ireland in the late 1970s and is grateful for the opportunity to be here and to raise her family here. She feels privileged to be able to provide goats and their milk to needy families in third world countries through Heifer International — to date, more than 60 goats and counting!

The pottery will be made by Williamson, Simmons, Heike Tonhauser, Libby Wood, and Wilma Younkman.

Simmons and Williamson both work in stoneware to create functional objects that are beautiful and hard-working. "It's been a goal of mine to design and create a diverse variety of utilitarian clay objects that I can use in my everyday life," Simmons said.

"The natural world has been a source and inspiration for my designs — from leaves to bark to sticks to rocks and the natural colors found all around me. My favorite inspiration comes from my husband's cabbage patch, a rich source of leaves used in the creation of unique, one of a kind bowls and trays."

"Most of my work is designed to be used with food: dinnerware, serving-ware, and bakeware," Williamson said. "I especially enjoy making large platters and bowls that can impact a room as ornaments and can do double duty as serving dishes." Also influenced by nature, Williamson said, "Most of my forms start off on the potter's wheel and are later altered to suggest a more organic nature. Decorative techniques are often employed to soften the surfaces and give reference to landscapes and botanical imagery.” Both Simmons and Williamson make pottery to withstand daily use, the dishwasher, the microwave, and with certain precautions, can be used in the oven for baking.

Simmons’ pottery includes: brie cheese bakers, berry bowls, mugs, olive dishes, cabbage-design platter and bowls, beer bread bakers, spoons rests, and other similar items. Williamson will offer everyday items ranging from large platters and pitchers to small cups. Both potters emphasize their work is both dishwasher and oven safe.

“I make utilitarian pottery. I love that I can make beautiful, functional, everyday objects that are a pleasure to use,” adds Williamson. “It is a joy to me to hear that one of my cups is someone’s favorite and that it is used daily. I’m an avid gardener and oftentimes my gardening and pottery-making intersect to inspire a piece of pottery for the garden. I enjoy the process of working in clay, exploring the limitless possibilities of the medium and the joy of discovery. The more I learn about pottery-making, the more I discover I will never know it all.”

Heike Tonhaeuser is a German-born ceramic artist, who now lives in the Upstate. She started learning to make pottery six years ago at Spartanburg Art Museum and has since continuously improved her skills by taking workshops with artists such as Nick Joerling, Steven Hill, and Gary Huntoon who influenced her work immensely. Her pottery varies from flowing forms inspired by nature to precise, clear porcelain vessels.

Libby Wood’s pottery is made with low-fire earthenware and then hand-painted in the majolica style of decoration. “I have a lot of fun decorating the pottery I create!” Wood said. “First I apply a shiny white base coat of glaze and then I paint colorful images of things like leaves, bees or flowers.” She adds, “No piece is ever exactly the same, but they all have plenty of color, lots and lots of bright color! My hope is that my pottery brings a bit of joy to the owner.” Wood’s offerings are food safe, and she recommends hand washing the decorative pieces.

Wilma Younkman, who is also a photographer and watercolor artist, brings those artistic skills to her pottery. Most of her work is hand thrown from white clay called “Half and Half” that’s been blended from porcelain and stoneware. Younkman searches through decades of her own nature photography for images to use as inspiration while she paints images of birds, butterflies and such on her pottery. “And then I usually tear up the photograph, so I don’t repeat myself,” she said. “Every piece is one-of-a-kind.”

“Our hands and hearts have been very busy getting ready for this event,” Williamson said. “We invite the public to come out on Saturday, Nov. 4, and do a little holiday shopping. And having a frozen casserole is always a good thing during the holidays.

Think beyond the holidays — many of our ceramic offerings would make wonderful wedding presents, teacher presents, hostess gifts, office gifts, and then of course, a gift for yourself or your home! Everything we have is special from the pottery to the jewelry to the food. Plus the atmosphere is so casual, so like the old church bazaars of yesteryear — only bigger and with really nice stuff.

In addition to their to-go items the circle will be selling coffee and pastries, so feel free to linger and enjoy a little treat!

Now on view at the Johnson Collection’s exhibition space, TJC Gallery, this curated presentation of 30 objects illuminates how African Americans have continuously participated in, pioneered, taught, and transformed American art, in the South and beyond - from the traditional nineteenth-century portraiture of Joshua Johnson to the groundbreaking Abstract Expressionism of Alma Thomas. The exhibition includes both formally trained and self-taught artists such as Benny Andrews, John Biggers, Selma Burke, Edwin Harleston, Clementine Hunter, William H. Johnson, Lois Mailou Jones, James Porter, Leo Twiggs, and Hale Woodruff.

Education plays a significant role in the Johnson Collection’s mission. In college classrooms and community forums, at local venues and national museums, through scholarly publications and traveling exhibitions: we seek to illuminate the rich history and diverse cultures of the American South as borne out in the region’s various visual art forms. In keeping with that commitment, this exhibition engages upper-level art history students from Wofford College with selected works created by African American artists - transforming gallery space into classroom and learners into teachers.

One of this nation’s finest teachers, Dr.

John Biggers (1924-2001), “The Man”, circa 1955

Martin Luther King, Jr., believed that “the function of education is to teach one to think intensively and to think critically.” Throughout the fall semester, students will be asked to think deeply and critically about African American art and Southern connections. Their discoveries will, in turn, become instructive tools for gallery visitors in the form of explanatory wall labels and public presentations.

The exhibition was organized by TJC’s curator Dr. Erin Corrales-Diaz, who also serves as the Johnson Collection Visiting Scholar at both Wofford and Converse Colleges. Corrales-Diaz believes that “the

GREENVILLE OPEN STUDIOS 2017 EXHIBIT

Something on the Squares is an exhibition of works by the participating Open Studios 2017 artists. This exhibit is a great way to sample the works of Open Studios artists prior to choosing which studios to visit. The artists worked within a size parameter of 12 x 12 (x12) inches for the exhibit, and the collection of work reveals a variety of artistic mediums and thematic content among Greenville-area artists.

in depth. I'm curious about the narrative that each person attaches to the work just by looking at the eyes or expressions. My hope is that you see what they're trying to say to you. There are representations of loss, myth, pleasure, even vanity. There's a little bit of all us in each piece."

All of the artwork is either deconstructed or distorted in various ways to represent what really lies behind the guises, masks, pretenses, and veneers that individuals outwardly present. Some of the distortion are caused by the background, which is invasive, representing the influence of the environment on the individual. In some of the pieces outside pain is obvious, particularly in her "Asylum" series.

"Those pieces are based on a collection of photos I have from a 19th century insane asylum, and they are full of pain," Giaco said. "Through the use of color, harsh brushstrokes or the gesture of line, I hope to convey the sense of pain, apathy or escape, mostly evident in the eyes. We all wear masks and construct facades as protection. In the end though, either through body language, expression or something in the eyes, we usually give ourselves away."

Giaco is the volunteer Marketing Chair for West Main Artists Co-op and a member of Tryon Painters and Sculptors. More of her distorted ink renderings and paintings may be viewed in her gallery-studio located at the Co-op in Spartanburg. One of her distorted portraits was chosen by Spartanburg Art Museum for the public art program "Lighten Up Spartanburg." The art bulb "Mawu-Sunlight" is now on display on Main Street Spartanburg in front of the Herald-Journal's building. Her work is also part of the permanent collection at Spartanburg Art Museum.

West Main Artists Co-op in Spartanburg, SC, to Exhibit 44 Members' Artwork

West Main Artists Co-op in Spartanburg, SC, will present Open Doors, featuring works by 44 member artists, on view from Nov. 16 through Dec. 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 16, from 5-9pm, during Spartanburg's monthly ArtWalk, where two dozen of the artists will be in their studios demonstrating how they create everything from jewelry and pottery to watercolor paintings and sculptures.

"This is our biggest and most important exhibit for the year," Chairwoman Beth Regula said. "We host different exhibits each month, most of which are by individual members, but some are by non-member artists who we invite to show in our large gallery, the Venue. This exhibit, however, will be our largest of the year. It is an opportunity for us to focus on all of our members at one time; to bring them and their work together; to show breadth and scope of the art being produced by local artists in one place. We asked our members to display their most recent and new works. On ArtWalk night, we will have many of our members in their studios creating. For some people it is real treat to watch an artist at work. It certainly can be insightful."

Work by Eugene Johnson

"At this time there is no event like this in Spartanburg," Glenda Guion, one of the exhibit's organizers, said. "Many cities have city-wide open-studio events. We hope our event might eventually include other artists' studios, similar to the Studio Trek in Tryon or Open Studios in Greenville. I was chairperson of the Greenville event for five years and participated for 10 years, beginning from its conception. Hopefully, teachers will encourage art students to visit the studios and talk to the artists about their journey that led them to the Co-op. Some members are 30-year professional artists, while others have recently become dedicated to making art. There is no other group studio space or open-studio event in the Spartanburg area."

At the heart of this exhibit is the Co-op's mission to give its more than 50 members as many opportunities as possible to produce, show, and sell their artwork. But the timing of this exhibit during the Holidays is no coincidence. "First, we want to bring in new visitors to view the artwork, and to open the studios and educate the public about what a gem they have right here in Spartanburg!" Guion said. "I can't believe how many people ask me 'what is that place?' We would like to remove the mystique of what goes on in our spaces and to invite people to visit us anytime during our business hours, not just on this night.

"And this is perfect timing for Christmas shopping," she continued. "There is a wide range of artwork at every price point. There is everything from handmade jewelry, quilts and pottery to original paintings, sculpture and photography." She expects each of the 44 participating artists will have two to eight new works of art to show. In total there will be hundreds of pieces throughout the multi-story building, meeting an unmet need to make locally created art available on daily basis. Because of the scope of this exhibit, no other exhibits will be open at West Main Artists Co-op during this time, which normally has individual monthly member exhibits.

"This is the first time since the grand opening of the Co-op seven years ago that almost all of the artists will be opening their studios for the public," Guion said. "Each artist will be available to answer questions about their work and process. During the past two years there are more than 20 new members. We hope that people will come to visit our long-established Co-op members and meet our newer artists. There have been lots of changes in just the past year, both in membership and our physical space. The participating artists hope to educate the public about where and how they create artwork, to showcase our workspace, art community and what we create."

USC-Upstate in Spartanburg, SC, Features Works by Mary Robinson

USC-Upstate in Spartanburg, SC, will present Finding Language, featuring art of Palmetto State resident Mary Robinson, whose dreamlike works evoke images of chaos and elemental forces, on view in the UPSTATE Gallery on Main, from Nov. 9 through Dec. 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 16, from 5-8pm, during the Spartanburg Artwalk.

Drawing upon our complex and tumultuous relationship with nature, Robinson's artworks invoke both the fluidity of the natural world and the intermittent - and at times dramatic - reconfigurations due to natural disruption and renewal. Often mixing and remixing printmaking matrices along with cutting up and reconstructing prior paintings and drawings, the resulting enigmatic and dream-like images echo the interplay and chaos of elemental forces at work in the world around us.

Work by Mary Robinson

"My work is deeply inspired by natural forms, particularly the branching systems of trees, roots, rivers and human arteries, as well as the elaborate chaos of tangled vines. I observe complex patterns of flowing, twisting fibers, and nature's mode of creating variety within repetition," Robinson said. "These forms, along with more geometric, often-architectural structures, have become part of a visual vocabulary I use to relay my experience of existence - from conveying the pulse of nature to mirroring humans' capacity for creation and destruction."

Robinson is an associate professor of art and head of printmaking at the University of South Carolina. She received a BFA in studio art from the University of Colorado, an MA in art history from the University of Wisconsin and an MFA in printmaking from Indiana University. Her work was recently included in Independent Spirits: Women Artists of South Carolina at the Columbia Museum of Art and has been exhibited broadly in the United States and internationally.

The deadline each month to submit articles, photos and ads is the 24th of the month prior to the next issue. This will be Nov. 24th for the December 2017 issue and Dec. 24 for the January 2018 issue.

Furman University in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Nishiki Sugawara-Beda

Furman University in Greenville, SC, will present HANA, featuring works by Nishiki Sugawara-Beda, on view in the Thompson Gallery, Roe Art Building, from Nov. 20 through Dec. 12, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 29, from 6-7:30pm.

The exhibition is free and open to the public and is sponsored by the Furman Department of Art.

Sugawara-Beda was born and raised in Japan, where all schoolchildren learn calligraphy. This craft and the art of Japanese ink painting "Sumi-e" provide the foundation and inspiration for her practice. In her current series of work, she explores the relationship between written language and image on paper substrate.

Sugawara-Beda, whose work is supported through a grant from Arts Idaho, says, "My paintings begin as densely layered linguistic compositions expressing a particular theme. For a native Japanese speaker, occasionally characters can be glimpsed and read in the literal sense. Yet more often, these layers explore possible nuances of a phrase or phrases, introducing complexity and contradictions.

"I use watercolor paper for its ability to capture the ink of a brush; calligraphy is a dance, frozen in time, which once executed cannot be revisited. As in the Japanese tradition of the craft, I am a performer on the surface of the paper as I choose those aspects of the language I wish to reveal, and those I may wish to wash away in ambiguity."

A resident of Moscow, Idaho, Sugawara-Beda holds a Master of Fine Arts in Painting from Indiana University (Bloomington) and a Bachelor of Arts in Fine Arts from Portland State University (Oregon).

Furman University in Greenville, SC, Features Annual Juried Show

Furman University in Greenville, SC, is presenting Various Selves: Identity and Identities, the 4th annual juried art exhibition by students and faculty of Furman University's Undergraduate Evening Studies (UES), on view in the Baiden Gallery of the Herring Center for Continuing Education, through Nov. 20, 2017.

Thirty works of art, of various media, were curated by Furman Associate Professor of Art Michael Brodeur who says, "The theme of this year's exhibition, Various Selves, lends itself to many approaches and interpretations. In my deliberations, I aimed to embody the concept of self and 'the other' implied in the theme either through metaphorical expression, exploration of self, or portrayal of others."

UES Director Beth Crews says students, alumni, staff and professors are fortunate to have a community showplace in the Herring Center for displaying their collective creative work. "Evening students are working adults, none of whom are art majors or professional artists. 70 works were submitted for consideration. It's remarkable to be able to curate so many high-quality pieces from this group," she says.

Participating artists in this year's exhibition are: Erin Albrecht, David Bernardy, Ashton Gortee, Jennifer Cote, Beth Crews, Diana Godwin, Jennifer Grissop, Bryan Hiott, Tammy Moore, Tiffany Murphy, Scott Murr, Raven Ostlind, Pamela Rastatter, Sam Tisdale, David Williams.

Wofford College in Spartanburg, SC, Offers Look at Its Collection

Wofford College in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting In the Service of Teaching and Learning: An Inaugural Exhibition of the Wofford Fine Arts Collection, featuring some 50 selections of this vast fine arts collection, on display on both levels of the Richardson Family Art Museum in the Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts, through Dec. 18, 2017.

With more than 1,200 pieces – paintings; prints, watercolors and sketches on paper; Chinese ink rubbings; and Asian, Middle Eastern and African artifacts and objects – Wofford College's Fine Arts Collection has served as a valuable educational, historical and cultural treasure-trove throughout the college's history.

Acquired from the college's foundational days in the mid-19th century to today, the collection includes 300 works – almost a complete collection – by American Southern artist Julia Elizabeth Tolbert, some 200 pieces of Chinese ink rubbings, a collection of Hungarian paintings donated by the late Sandor Teszler and Drs. Francis and Livia Robicsek, and a variety of other artworks and objects.

"The Wofford Fine Arts Collection has served as a valuable educational resource that strengthens, supports and contributes to academic research on campus in a variety of disciplines," Dr. Youmi Efurud says. "The primary focus in selecting the works for the exhibition was given to the mission of the collection – their use in teaching and facilitating learning."

Dr. Karen Goodchild, professor and chair of the Department of Art and Art History, notes that Dr. David Efurud, associate professor of fine arts, is teaching a survey of Asian art, a course required for every art history major and one many non-majors take to fulfill their cultures and peoples or fine arts requirement. "The 48 students in his classes will be working with the objects on display in this exhibition, bringing their classroom-gained knowledge about Asian objects to shed light on actual works of art. Also, Dr. Peter Schmunk (professor of humanities) is teaching an upper-level course on 19th century art, and his students will work with the Impressionist paintings from the permanent collection being shown."

Goodchild notes that descriptions for a number of the works will provide visitors with information about student research from past years into those works.

The works provide "a unique opportunity for students to work with artifacts and art objects – paintings, sculptures, ceramics, tapestries – something that rarely happens with undergraduates, even at larger institutions," Efurud adds. "Their employment enhances the level of students' research as well as facilitates a deeper engagement of historical and cultural settings beyond what is stated in textbooks."

Many of the works in the college's Fine Arts Collection were donated by benefactors, art lovers and sometimes the artists themselves, Efurud says. "While the collection goes back to the college's foundational days – collecting portraits of significant figures, such as our founder, Benjamin Wofford – as an art collection, the major landmark was during the early 1990s when the late Sandor Teszler donated a group of Hungarian impressionist and post-impressionist works," she says. That collection inspired the donation in recent years of additional Hungarian paintings by the Robicsek family of Charlotte, NC.

Wofford became the largest holder of Julia Tolbert's art in 2011 when two generations of the family donated nearly the entire life-work corpus – including paintings in oil, watercolor and gouache as well as drawings, prints, jewelry and ceramics.

Chinese stone rubbings – 285 of them – collected by the late German diplomat Karl-August Balsler in 1911 in Xian, China, were donated by his family to the Wofford permanent collection.

The exhibition includes a wide variety of the important works donated to the college, Efurud says. "I wanted to show the broad span of selected works the college has been collecting, and this exhibition is a great opportunity for us to show how the collection is being displayed and employed for the betterment of the college community and beyond," she says. "I also wanted to emphasize how donated works of art facilitate education at a liberal arts college."

Efurud says guided tours and children's education programs can be arranged at the Richardson Family Art Museum on request; contact Miriam Thomas, arts administrator, by e-mail at (thomasmh@wofford.edu).

Wofford College, established in 1854, is a four-year, residential liberal arts college located in Spartanburg, SC. It offers 25 major fields of study to a student body of 1,650 undergraduates. Nationally known for the strength of its academic program, outstanding faculty, study abroad participation and successful graduates, Wofford is home to one of the nation's 283 Phi Beta Kappa chapters. The college community enjoys Greek Life as well as 19 NCAA Division I athletics teams.

Wofford College in Spartanburg, SC, Features Work by Sheridan Kate Murray

Wofford College in Spartanburg, SC, will present Dying on the Vine, featuring works by Sheridan Kate Murray in the 2017 Whetsell Fellowship Exhibition, on view in the Richardson Family Art Gallery in the Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts, from Nov. 7 through Dec. 21, 2017.

When Murray was a first-year student at Wofford College, she found herself captivated by muscadine grapes she spotted one day during her environmental studies lab at the college's Goodall Environmental Studies Center on the Lawson's Fork Creek at Glendale, SC.

The Whetsell Fellowship, designed to support and promote the visual arts at Wofford, is a summer fellowship established in 2006 by Dr. William O. Whetsell in memory of his brother, Dan Whetsell.

"I remember being captivated by the grapes and their perfectly imperfect circular forms, appreciating the way they cascaded over each other with a lack of control that has never been prevalent in my own life," says Murray, who is from Candler, NC. "This image, always present in the back of my mind, is one that I often find myself rendering in sketches or doodles as a method of relaxation and comfort. Depicted with varying levels of control and tightness, the constancy of the organic muscadine-like forms found in these pieces represents the consistent force of natural inspiration in my life as well as my continuous journey to coax myself into letting go and embracing chaos."

Murray says she attempts to explore this same subject matter in both large and small works, "in as many different unique and unusual ways as possible.

"The repetition of similar forms evokes a sense of harmony within the works as a whole while the inclusion of graphite pencil calls to mind the doodling process utilized by many as a method of escapism," she says. "Though all branching off from the same initial design, each work explores different facets of nonrepresentational organic shapes in a manner that mirrors my own self-exploration and introspective journey. The repetitive shapes utilized make each work feel cohesive while the abstraction allows for the viewer to apply their own thoughts and feelings to the work."

Murray will give a gallery talk at 7pm on Nov. 16, in the Richardson Family Art Gallery.

Sumter County Gallery of Art in Sumter, SC, Features Works by Deane Ackerman and Terrell Clark

The Sumter County Gallery of Art in Sumter, SC, is proud to present The Art of Deane Ackerman and Terrell Clark: EYES of Havana on view from Nov. 16 through Jan. 12, 2018. A reception will be held on Nov. 16, from 5:30-7:30pm. Terrell Clark will give an artist talk the night of the opening.

Deane Ackerman, a native of Illinois, attended Northwestern University for one year, and then continued her college work as a sculpture major at the School of the Art Institute in Chicago. Married, with 3 children and 3 grandchildren, she has been a Sumter resident since 1965 and is a charter member of the Sumter Artist's Guild, which was founded in 1972. She worked almost exclusively as a sculptor until 1980, producing many pieces now found in private collections across the country. Though she has worked in a variety of mediums, her focus for the past 30 years has been colored pencil drawing, for which she has won numerous awards.

In 1993 Ackerman became a member of the newly founded Colored Pencil Society of America. The original organization, started by a small number of artists working exclusively in colored pencil, has now expanded to include approximately 1800 members, with chapters in 10 other countries. Each summer the CPSA has an international exhibit in a different city in the United States, and this year marked her 11th time being juried into the annual exhibit, and her 3rd time as an award winner.

In January 2005, the Sumter Gallery of Art presented a Deane Ackerman Retrospective with the emphasis on Ackerman's sculptural works. Executive Director Karen Watson and Curator Gardner Cole Miller were both enthusiastic about revisiting Ackerman's work, this time with an emphasis on her colored pencil drawings.

Ackerman artist statement: "My interest in art began in early childhood. Moving from one medium to the next, I first discovered sculpture in my high school art class. I found the three-dimensional form fascinating and it has continued to be apparent in most all of my work throughout the years. After years of working as a sculptor, I had the desire to move toward color, and also back to the basics of all art, drawing; pencil on paper. When I discovered colored pencil about 30 years ago, it was just by chance, browsing through a bookstore. Seeing the colorful spine of a book titled, 'Colored Pencil', I knew before I had pulled it from the shelf that I had found 'IT'! That was the starting point of a very exciting and challenging journey that I have been on ever since."

"A lot of thought goes into my decisions on subject matter and composition because I know it will be an investment of months of time," says Ackerman. "I'm always looking for 'the light', because between light and dark is the drama of the piece. Objects that are transparent or reflective are particularly fascinating to me, especially those elements that are viewed through glass and water. Being able to examine and capture that special moment, in time and light, with all of its intricate depth and detail, is what I find so satisfying and colored pencil drawing offers me just that."

"Reflecting on what has held my interest and driven me to express myself as an artist over almost all the years of my life,

I really cannot say. All I know is that my passion for it has never diminished. I have always had some art project going on; if not already in progress, then in my head, observing my surroundings. Maybe it's somewhere in my DNA, but wherever it springs from, I am most grateful," adds Ackerman.

A native of Meridian, MS, Terrell Clark is a photographer with an exceptional eye who possesses that rare ability to capture those precious moments in life that would otherwise be missed and forever lost in the vortex of forgotten memories. Clark's beginning in photography is quite interesting. When he was in ninth grade, he built a pinhole camera from a Maxwell House coffee can. To this day he still has his first picture, which was taken with the pinhole camera.

In addition to crisscrossing the United States, his camera has taken him to different parts of the world, including various countries in Africa and Europe, Jamaica, the Dominican Republic, St. Thomas-US Virgin Islands, Tortola- British Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Mexico, Grand Bahama Island and recently Cuba.

Clark's work has appeared in numerous newspapers, magazines and publications, and on-line publications including The Meridian Star, Huffington Post, Atlanta Journal Constitution, Gulf Scapes Magazine, Season Magazine and Loft Life Magazine.

Past exhibitions include Mason Fine Art, Arnika Dawkins Gallery, Photography Center of Atlanta, Sewanee: The University of the South, Sewanee, TN, Georgia State University, Atlanta, The Hub, Atlanta, Johnson C. Smith University, North Carolina, and Clay's Gallery in Atlanta.

2009 saw the release of Clark's first monograph, EYES OF UGANDA, A Sociological Perspective. December 2015, 3 large-scale pinhole works of Clark's were part of a group exhibition at The Museum of Contemporary Art of Georgia (Atlanta), his first museum showing. In 2016, Clark's catalogue, EYES of Havana, Chromatic Life was published in a limited edition. The Sumter exhibition comprises the images from his time spent in Havana.

Clark has a BS in Biomedical Sciences from Marquette University and lives in downtown Atlanta.

Executive Director Karen Watson notes that the Sumter County Gallery of Art has worked for the past two years to bring Clark's work to the gallery. Both Deane Ackerman and Terrell Clark have a deep appreciation for color and the exhibitions promise to dazzle the eye. Clark's exhibition also includes black and white photographs, which achieve emotional depth.

Fine Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, Features Works by Curtis Phillips and Chet Lanious

The Fine Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, is presenting Beauty & Function, featuring works by Curtis Phillips and Chet Lanious, on view in the Bassett Gallery, through Nov. 10, 2017.

The exhibition commingles two forms of artistic works - paintings by Curtis Phillips alongside Chet Lanious' handmade furniture. This is Phillips and Lanious first exhibition at the Bassett Gallery.

Curtis Phillips (C.C.), a Columbia, SC, native and graduate of the University of South Carolina/Columbia with a BA in Art will exhibit landscapes, as well as some of his newer, abstract pieces during this exhibition. Mostly known for his oil, watercolor, pencil and gouache, he will include poetry to accompany several pieces. Phillips spent some time in LA and New York before returning south. He currently lives in Charleston, SC. His work can be seen in public and private collections throughout the United States.

Chet Lanious a Pennsylvania native will be exhibiting some of his handmade furniture. He creates functional pieces that are pleasing to the eye and touch, and should be considered heirlooms to tie one generation to the next. Lanious was a Presbyterian minister in Louisiana and Oklahoma before joining the US Army as a chaplain. He served in that capacity for over 25 years and retired from Ft. Jackson in Columbia. After his retirement, Lanious pursued a degree at Haywood Community College in the Professional Craft in Wood program. Recently his pieces were seen as part of an exhibition at the South Carolina Artisans Center in Walterboro, SC.

The Fine Arts Center is funded, in part, by the South Carolina Arts Commission, the National Endowment for the Arts. Additional funding provided by the City of Camden, Kershaw County, Duke Energy and BlueCross BlueShield of South Carolina and donations from businesses and individuals.

City Art Gallery in Columbia, SC, will present Environmental Abstractions by Laurie McIntosh: A Holiday Solo Exhibition, on view from Nov. 16 through Jan. 27, 2018. An opening reception will be held on Nov. 16, from 5-9pm, during Columbia's Vista Lights celebration.

Above the main drag of South Carolina's famed Revolutionary War town, Camden, SC, turned horse racing mecca, in a light-filled, brick-walled loft, a jumble of paintings in various stages of completion are pinned to walls, resting on easels and lying on tables. To the casual observer—and even to one familiar with artists' studios—the scene is chaotic. How can an artist work in this cabal of canvas, paint, brushes, and wood, jumbled in no particular order, with a solo exhibition looming in a few weeks?

For Camden artist Laurie Brownell McIntosh, whose abstract paintings involve deconstructing ordinary aspects of life and reconfiguring them into finished works, the scene is life imitating art. As she moves through her studio, she knows exactly what needs to be done before her exhibition at Columbia's City Art Gallery. Her show, Environmental Abstraction, debuts Nov. 16 during the annual Vista Lights arts and holiday celebration.

McIntosh explains that while her abstracts involve recognizable objects from her life that is split between South Carolina's Midlands and the coast - a fishing lure here, a sleeping dog there and what appears to be a piece of horse tack in another - each one is like a remnant of a dream. Fleeting images rendered in a soothing color palette stir memories and emotions, creating more questions than answers. As such, McIntosh says her work is intentionally open to interpretation.

Work by Laurie McIntosh

"The objects one might recognize in my paintings are not exclusively my story. They are pieces and parts of life in the South that connect with my viewer's memories and prompts them to put together what they see into their story. While my new works are an intimate look at my experiences, they are also personal to the viewer who sees their own stories reflected in them," she said.

Over the course of her 35-year career in the arts, the last 23 of which have been dedicated to painting, McIntosh has participated in over 30 exhibitions of her art. Her work is also collected by both corporate and individual collectors. The City Art exhibition will be her first since relocating to Northlight Studio in Camden after seven years as a full-time resident artist at Vista Studios in Columbia.

City Art is a top destination during Vista Lights, which attracts thousands of visitors each year, and through the holidays. City Art is located in the heart of Columbia's Vista arts and entertainment district on Lincoln Street.

photographs and the act of photographing as a departure point.

Gould is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she studied anthropology, the SALT Institute for Documentary Studies, where she studied non-fiction writing, and Speos (Paris Photographic Institute), where she finally began her studies in photography. She received her MFA in photography from the University of Massachusetts - Dartmouth. She taught at Speos (Paris Photographic Institute), Kutztown University, and Bowdoin College, and has taught at the University of New Mexico since 2012. Gould was a resident at Light Work in 2009, and her work has been featured in solo and group exhibitions throughout the United States and internationally.

Gould writes: “The Bureau of Visual Instruction is an ongoing, open-ended dissection of photographic vision. The material culture (and language) of photographic education began to seep directly into my studio practice a few years ago, and I find that I can no longer untangle the two. This exhibition includes photographs and unique objects, representing a long-term investigation of photographic vision, skewed towards failures, accidents, and mistakes, both deliberate and accidental. I look to examine the control that technology exerts upon us, the assumptions we make as we engage with technologies of vision. It is simultaneously a love letter to the most prosaic aspects of the medium and an obsessive, joyful critique of rules.”

of identity, and the relationship between scale and meaning.

“The relationship between artist and subject is an interesting one. What happens when the subject is an artist as well?” says Will South, CMA chief curator. “Beyond that, what can a face—and the interpretation of that face—reveal? Alphonse explores these questions in a manner that is both bold and nuanced.”

Seven of the nine artists featured in the exhibition are also represented in the CMA collection: Pat Steir, Sam Gilliam, William T. Williams, Chuck Close, Kiki Smith, Elizabeth Catlett, and Ida Appelbroog (the other two artists being Molissa Fenley and Fred Wilson).

After spending time with icon and fellow Dutch artist Willem de Kooning, who impressed upon Van Woerkom the paradoxical intimacy of large-scale art, he began the grand portrait project that would become Face Value. The exhibition labels, written by Van Woerkom himself, are brief accounts of his experience creating the portraits, often interacting with the subjects in their own studios. This conversational narrative, providing a glimpse into the inner worlds and idiosyncrasies of some of the biggest names on the New York art scene, reinforces the intimacy of the large-scale images.

A master of the medium, Van Woerkom uses a wide variety of drawing techniques. The result is a likeness that is realistic yet full of evocative and provocative marks. Visitors will see up close the artist’s methods and how they come together to form powerful images.

“Each one of Alphonse’s portraits,” South says, “is an example of how the humble materials of pencil and paper, combined with the complexities of a human face, can be transformed into a monumental work of art.”

Face Value: Artists’ Portraits by Alphonse van Woerkom is presented through the generosity of our sponsors and grantors. Grantor: Richland County. Additional support for the CMA exhibition program is provided by Lipscomb Sponsor: Mrs. Marcia Stine.

selecting only 24 artists from a record number of submissions of 146," said 701 CCA board chair Wim Roefs. "They spent considerable time looking at images provided by the artists and discussing the work before they came to their final selection. They managed to put together a strong group of artists that shows the excellent contemporary art produced currently in South Carolina."

The 701 CCA South Carolina Biennial 2017 is a survey exhibition of work by contemporary South Carolina artists. The Biennial is an initiative of 701 CCA and was first held in 2011. The goals of the Biennial exhibition are to provide a venue to showcase recent work reflecting local, regional and national trends and issues influencing contemporary artists living and working in South Carolina and to increase awareness and appreciation of the artistic contributions and accomplishments of the state's visual artists. The project draws on the breadth of the visual arts community by providing a multi-media juried statewide exhibition opportunity every two years.

Artists working in all media and styles were encouraged to apply in order to reflect the stylistic and cultural diversity of art produced in the state. Artists had to be a current resident of South Carolina.

"The 701 CCA South Carolina Biennial is one of many ways in which 701 CCA has dramatically increased and improved the arts infrastructure in South Carolina," Roefs said. "Another important program in that respect is the also-biennial 701 CCA Prize for South Carolina artists 40 and younger. Add to that the many exhibitions and artist residencies featuring artists from the state, and it's easy to see why 701 CCA is considered the state's most important contemporary art center, including in terms of featuring South Carolina artists."

701 CCA is a non-profit visual arts center that promotes understanding, appreciation and enjoyment of contemporary art, the creative process and the role of art and artists in the community. The center also encourages interaction between visual and other art forms.

Gallery West in West Columbia, SC, Features Fun Works of Art

Gallery West in West Columbia, SC, will present For the Fun of It: Playfulness in Art, on view from Nov. 3 through Dec. 23, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 3, from 6-9pm as part of the First Friday Art Crawl on State Street. The opening also coincides with the Fall Festival on State Street sponsored by The City of West Columbia.

The exhibition is a diverse collection of art objects that fall into the category of “playful,” or full of play. The gallery will be filled with works that are beautifully fun, and playfully beautiful, perfect for gift giving for adults and children during the holidays. The art will bring delight with its humorous and original concepts, and impress visitors with its craft. There are numerous definitions of “playfulness”, showing that you are having fun; the quality of being light-hearted; and being full of play and merriment, all concepts fully embraced by the participating artists.

Frances Turner, a contemporary doll-maker, is the featured artist for this exhibition. Turner is a native of Dayton, OH, whose work is greatly influenced by deep southern roots and African cultural heritage. Her passion for natural fabrics and African textiles, paired with her fifty-year career as a seamstress/tailor, result in astonishing beauty and precision in each doll. She uses both hand stitching and machine sewing in her meticulous creations, from the hand stitched tiny shoes, hats and accessories, to the beautiful clothing created for each piece. Many of her dolls are based on actual figures from African-American history. These particular dolls come with a story behind the subject.

Work by Jennifer Hill

The works included in this exhibition, created by fifteen artists, vary in medium and subject. Artists included are: Janet Oliver, Greensboro, NC - Watercolor; Marie van Vuuren Stone, Greensboro,

Work by Virginia Scotchie

NC - Watercolor; Jennifer Hill, Columbia, SC - Characters of hand-felted wool in glass containers; Lyon Hill, Columbia, SC - Handmade puppets and marionettes; Felted Shelter Pets, Lindenhurst, NY - Sculptural woodland animals of hand-felted wool; Kara Gunter, West Columbia, SC - Inventive fused glass wall lights; Plessinger Brothers Studio, Dayton, OH - Imaginative woodworking; Greyson Smith, Columbia, SC - Image transfers and ink on paper; Bobby Baker, Columbia, SC - Found and Altered lamps and sculpture; Marius Valdes, Columbia, SC - Paintings, drawings, and prints; Virginia Scotchie, Columbia, SC - Ceramic sculpture; Bri Kinard, Columbia, SC - Ceramic sculpture; Kelly and Spenser Schull (Jellykoe), Columbia, SC - Plush toys, vinyl and resin toys, art prints; and Tabitha Ott, Columbia, SC - Wearable art.

A fun and unusual addition to the show will be the Art-O-Mat, provided by One Columbia. The concept, originated by artist Clark Whittington of Winston-Salem, NC, is to repurpose vintage cigarette machines to now dispense small cigarette sized boxed art in place of actual cigarettes, each machine taking $1 and $5 bills. The Columbia Art-O-Mat is a magical machine filled to the brim with top shelf $5 art by artists from all over the country.

Gallery West shares in Columbia’s creative life with art from around the world. Come and discover work from established as well as emerging artists, staged with objects designed to make you feel at home. Fine contemporary craft is likewise incorporated into our comfortable and welcoming surroundings. A feature of the gallery is the unusual and beautifully crafted art jewelry from international, national and regional designers.

Gallery West specializes in the unique, offering exquisite objects for every budget. Whether shopping for the home, a holiday or your own heartstrings, you will enjoy art, and all artisan-made objects, just across the Congaree.

is pottery month in the Carolinas. While putting this issue together I quickly noticed that pottery events are taking place all over North and South Carolina this month.

The Edgefield Area Clay Guild has an ad on Page 13, where there is also an article about a pottery and bake sale at Central United Methodist Church in Spartanburg, SC. On Page 28 there is an article about the Cabarrus Arts Council’s annual clay invitational in Concord, NC. On page 34 is an article about the 10th annual Celebration of Seagrove Potters in Seagrove, NC, and an event by the Potters of the Piedmont in Greensboro, NC. On Page 36 you’ll find an article about the Coastal Carolina Clay Guild’s sale in Wilmington, NC. On Page 39

we have an article about the Durham (NC) County Pottery Tour. There are also works by potters and clay artists in many of the other exhibits mentioned in the issue. It’s time to go pottery wild.

But the “Mother” of all pottery sales events is the Celebration of Seagrove Potters in the pottery capital of the Carolinas and probably the Southeast. That’s why that event is being featured on our cover this month.

Taking place at the Historic Lucks Cannery in Seagrove, NC, this one event is probably responsible for many a wonderful Christmas present - to loved ones, good friends or to one’s self. I even hear rumor that there is another pottery sale going on in Seagrove that same weekend. I'm not sure, no one sent me a press release about it, but if you don't get your fill at Lucks Cannery - which I can't imagine - you might want to ask someone about it. Could there be two big pottery events in the same small town? Don't know, but if it was possible - Seagrove is the kind of small town that could handle that.

With up-cycled windows, doors, and canvasses, shoppers will find artisans whose works are highly sought for their range of color and designs. From friendly farm animals like cows and pigs to popular favorites like palmetto trees, each work of art is extraordinary and one-of-a-kind.

Seagrove is an incredibly small town to be the home to so many creative people - some several generations ongoing. And a lot of them are musicians too.

If you have never been there, you need to go sometime and if you like pottery, the Celebration is the time to go. But, you're going to have to book a room in Asheboro, NC, about 12 miles away. But wait till I get my room booked!

Mint Museum Uptown in Charlotte, NC, Offers Exhibit of Mexican Photographers

The Mint Museum Uptown in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Reveal and Detonate (Develar y Detonar): Contemporary Mexican Photography, featuring the powerful, thought-provoking work of more than 40 of Mexico's leading photographers, on view through June 17, 2018.

This not-to-be-missed exhibition examines the wide range of approaches that these photographers use to explore subjects, ranging from their own personal histories and relationships to their engagement with the country's diverse landscape to pressing social and political issues ranging from land use, drug trade, and immigration to beauty, sexuality, and gender. Ranging in size from a few inches across to floor-to-ceiling murals, some of these works are highly formal; others make a play for sheer beauty; still others are manipulated or staged to instill a sense of magic and wonder.

Develar y Detonar promises to open an engaging dialogue around the power of photography to both document and question many aspects of modern life, examining issues that are not isolated to residents of Mexico but that stretch across cultures and borders, connecting us all.

"Untitled", by Baldomero Robles, Created: 2011-2015, From the series: Loö Litz Beë.

This exhibition is drawn from the Televisa Foundation's rich collection of contemporary art; after having been seen in Madrid and Mexico City, The Mint Museum's presentation marks its North American debut. Develar y Detonar is also the central exhibition in a community-wide initiative celebrating Mexican photography titled In Focus/Enfoque, which currently will involve many arts and cultural organizations across Charlotte this fall.

This exhibition explores a wide range of important topics including: personal histories, cultural traditions, environmental

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, Offers Works by Susan Grossman

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, will present Susan Grossman: City Moments, showcasing new drawings on paper in charcoal and pastel, on view from Nov. 18 through Jan. 6, 2018. There will be a Coffee and Conversation artist lecture led by Grossman at the gallery on Nov. 18 at 11am.

Grossman's new work is sourced from scenes in Charlotte, NC, and, in a departure from previous drawings, utilizes color in striking ways. This exhibition is Grossman's fourth with the gallery.

Grossman has built a strong reputation for rendering urban scenes of New York City. We are proud to exhibit new works highlighting Charlotte and its landmarks, from the LYNX Blue Line light rail to the unmistakable skyline. For Grossman, colored pastel is typically used minimally or to enhance her glimmering cityscapes, but plays a major role in many of these new works. Suddenly viewers are warmed by sherbet sunset hues or drawn to technicolor taxicabs and umbrellas. These flashes of color, which the artist couples with strong compositional and perspectival effects, make the work glow with a cinematic quality.

Grossman wandered the streets of Charlotte taking her own photographs to capture scenes that ultimately inform her compositions. Once the photographs are printed, she sifts through them in her studio, selecting choice components from many images to form the resulting drawing.

Work by Susan Grossman

The familiar, generally mundane elements of city life define this work. Commuters hustle and families stroll under umbrellas while wet sidewalks reflect street lamps and taillights. Cabs, cars and trains cruise along as skyscrapers keep silent watch over the hustle and bustle of the city.

Grossman earned a BA from Bennington College in 1981 and a MFA from Brooklyn College in 1988. She has taught at City College of New York, the National Academy School of Fine Arts and Wesleyan College. She will be a Visiting Critic at the New York Academy of Art in the fall of 2018.

Jerald Melberg Gallery is located on South Sharon Amity Road near the intersection with Providence Road.

ClearWater Artist Studios in Concord, NC, Features Works by Barbara Ellis

ClearWater Artist Studios in Concord, NC, is presenting Abstracting Spirit: A New Direction, a solo exhibition of ClearWater tenant artist, Barbara Ellis' abstract expressionist paintings, on view through Dec. 1, 2017.

Ellis' works have evolved over the year 2016-17 as she delves deeper into how Spirit moves her artistic practice.

Born in New York, NY, Ellis received her Bachelors of Art degree from The City College of New York, in 1978. Throughout her demanding corporate career, she found time for continuing classes in art on the side. Upon relocating to Charlotte, NC in 2004, it became obvious that the corporate path was no longer a fit. Ellis then embarked on a creative path, while still working full-time; over years building relationships with Charlotte artists, participating in group shows, and eventually coming to ClearWater Artist Studios, where she has rented a studio since 2012. In 2015 she retired, and committed to working as an artist full-time. In 2016 she won as an ArtPop finalist, placing her artwork on a local billboard for a year.

Ellis was inspired to explore Abstract Expressionism after a visit to an exhibit of Women in Abstract Expressionism at the Mint Museum of Charlotte; and after experimenting upon a large surface, using one of ClearWater Artist Studios' "Giant Easels." Abstract expressionists in the '50's integrated the lyricism and spontaneity of Jazz music into their paintings, which resonates with her, she says, "as I grew up during the 1950's and 60s in a family where Jazz was an integral part of its fabric." Her great-grandfather was a well-known pianist in the New York ragtime scene.

Work by Barbara Ellis

Many of Ellis's new canvases - large, around 4' X 6' - are exhibited unstretched, to demonstrate part of her process, which is to work with the canvas tacked flat on the wall. About her work, Ellis says, "The creative process is spontaneous, automatic, and subconscious... The marks are gestural, active - using physical energy as a vehicle to translate impressions from the subconscious/spirit into visual form."

Ellis lives in Charlotte with her husband Henry, who helped her set up an audio recording of her own philosophical musings over Jazz music, as "sound-track" for the exhibit. She now happily reinvents herself daily by working her craft full-time at Clearwater Artist Studios.

ClearWater Artist Studios is the artist haven and community hub housed in the City of Concord's nearly century-old former water works and utility operations facilities. It launched a new, interactive website in August; feedback on the new (clearwaterartists.com) is welcomed.

Southern Highland Craft Guild in Asheville, NC, Features New Exhibition at Folk Art Center

As the leaves begin to change up on the Blue Ridge Parkway, the Southern Highland Craft Guild is presenting their new member exhibition, Legacy Endures, on view in the Main Gallery of the Folk Art Center, located off the Blue Ridge Parkway in Asheville, NC.

The gallery is showcasing 18 juried makers that have been accepted into the Guild within the past two years. Legacy Endures, on view through Jan. 14, 2018, is an introduction to these individuals and their craft in the media of glass, clay, metal, wood, fiber, paper, mixed media, jewelry, and natural materials.

For more than eight decades this process of sourcing quality handmade crafts has served as an integral method of growth for the Southern Highland Craft Guild. When the Guild was founded in 1930, it was to drive economic development to rural communities throughout the Appalachian region. Today, the Guild accepts approximately 20 to 40 new members each year. With a total of seven juries, both image and object, makers have the opportunity to apply multiple times throughout the year.

Membership in the Southern Highland Craft Guild requires a two-step jury process that begins with submission of five images. If approved, this round is followed by an invitation to present their collection or body of work. Makers are evaluated on quality in the categories of craftsmanship and design. Nearly a dozen of the Guild's current members are selected to serve on the Standards jury, a peer-to-peer process. These members rotate annually.

With the mission to cultivate the crafts and makers of the Southern Highlands for the purpose of shared resources, education, marketing, and conservation, makers join the Guild for various reasons.

Jewelry by Erica Bailey.

"When I originally looked into joining the Guild I thought it was simply a professional organization, but I am finding that I have become part of a large family, with a rich history," states Laura Peery, a member in clay. Her decorative, porcelain teapots and other ceramic sculpture will be on display in the exhibition.

Bladesmith Ken Hall says he applied to the Guild for "the great opportunity to cross-pollinate with other artists. It has expanded my perspective on what is possible to create." Hall also expresses his desire to connect with the public. "I enjoy engaging the public about the process of making knives in hopes to inspire people to consider their own creative abilities."

For Marty McConaughy, not until acceptance did she learn about the benefits and opportunities of her membership. "Taking the plunge to demonstrate at the Folk Art Center has opened a whole new avenue for me." McConaughy's decorative gourds were on exhibition at the summer Craft Fair in July. "I am honored to have my work shown with 'the best of the best' as fellow members value the art of hand crafting heirloom pieces and passing that knowledge on. The caliber of these artists encourages and challenges me to be exceptional in all that I do."

Admission to the Folk Art Center is free. The Folk Art Center is located at Milepost 382 on the Blue Ridge Parkway in east Asheville. Headquarters to the Southern Highland Craft Guild, the Center also houses three galleries, a library, a craft shop and a Blue Ridge Parkway information desk and bookstore.

The Southern Highland Craft Guild, chartered in 1930, is today one of the strongest craft organizations in the country. The Guild currently represents nearly 900 craftspeople in 293 counties of 9 southeastern states. During the Depression the Guild cultivated commerce for craftspeople in the Appalachian region. This legacy continues today as the Guild plays a large role in the Southern Highlands craft economy through the operation of four craft shops and two annual craft expositions. Educational programming is another fundamental element of the organization, fulfilled through integrated educational craft demonstrations at retail outlets and expos, free educational community events, and an extensive public library located at its headquarters at the Folk Art Center on the Blue Ridge Parkway.

Woolworth Walk in Asheville, NC, Offers Works by Angela Alexander and Carol Eder-Smith

Woolworth Walk in Asheville, NC, will present Barkle and Sparkle, featuring works by Angela Alexander and Carol Eder-Smith, on view in the FW Gallery, from Nov. 1 - 29, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 3, from 5-7pm.

Painting is Angela Alexander's gateway to happiness and freedom of spirit. Art is magical and has the power to transform the human existence. Early childhood admiration for cartoons and whimsical drawings started her love affair with art. She is a native of McAdenville, NC, which is better known to locals as "Christmas Town, USA." She worked as a graphic designer at a local newspaper before moving to Asheville in 1997. The vitality of the artistic community in Asheville sparked her desire to pursue a childhood dream of becoming an artist.

Alexander began painting in 2004, and her art is now nationally and internationally collected. In 2010 her work was also awarded the prestigious honor of exhibition at the AKC Museum of the Dog in St. Louis, MO. Why paint pets? Because they represent the purest forms of unconditional love. They love irrespective of gender, race or creed. Alexander's love for animals stems from the deep connection she has with her own pets. She has one Chihuahua, Maya, one Chihuahua/Poodle mix, Frida, and a cat, Thomas. These babies have enhanced her life in ways she could never explain. Her heart goes out to those animals that do not have permanent homes or loving families.

Alexander actively works with local animal rescue groups and donates her art to raise awareness and provide financial support for the wonderful organizations that strive to give all animals a deserving, loving home.

Carol Eder-Smith started making jewelry about 10 years ago after taking a class at a local community college. She found that she loved the process of turning raw materials into a wearable work of art. She continues her education of metalsmithing by attending as many classes as she can fit in her schedule.

Eder-Smith currently lives in Asheville with her husband Shawn, and sweet rescue dog, Garby. She is a full-time operating room nurse and pursues her love of jewelry in her off time, she has found that she has a love for nurturing a person's "inside", and at the same time, decorating them on their "outside".

Eder-Smith continues to learn and grow in her knowledge of metalsmithing techniques. She is constantly attending workshops with some of the finest jewelry artists in the area. She has also found a wonderful community of friends and fellow jewelry artists who unselfishly provide her with knowledge, inspiration, and encouragement. She feels so fortunate to have made so many

Before starting Tryon Toy Makers & Wood Carvers, Vance and Yale lived in Asheville's Biltmore Village, where they, along with Edith Vanderbilt, founded and ran what would become Biltmore Industries, a successful woodworking and weaving business. Pink Dog Creative in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Ralston Fox Smith

Pink Dog Creative, located in Asheville, NC’s, River Arts District, will present Furtherance, featuring works by contemporary artist, Ralston Fox Smith, on view from Nov. 10 through Dec. 17, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 10, from 6-9pm.

Smith has earned a strong following among collectors: his paintings hang in private and public collections around the world.

Furtherance represents a progression and transformation of vision as Smith has explored abstract and surreal landscapes and pushed beyond into the world of pure geometric abstraction. This exhibit is an opportunity to explore that evolution and to revel in his most recent compelling work.

The geometry of nature - from tree trunks and boulders to vast crop fields - have long been the building blocks of Smith’s work. The sharp lines and angles of man-made structures have also fueled the evolution of clean and ordered constructs in his work. With his newest collection, Smith has pushed further into the role of geometry, spatial relationships, and inherent positive and negative balance. On a two-dimensional surface, Smith expresses his response to chaotic energy through dynamic geometric constructs in a clean hard-edged manner. Furtherance is your chance to tap into that spirited power, which Smith calls both “honest and uplifting.”

Ralston Fox Smith grew up in southeastern New Hampshire and later attended Amherst College as well as the Santa Monica College of Design, Art and Architecture. He lives in Asheville with his amazing wife, two children and large dog, and shares a large studio north of downtown on the French Broad River with three exceptionally talented artists.

20th Voorhees Family Art Show and Sale Takes Place in Asheville, NC - Nov. 18 & 19, 2017

The 20th Voorhees Family Art Show and Sale will be held on Nov., 18, from 10am to 5pm and Nov. 19, from 10am to 4pm at Susan Voorhees’ home, 55 Woodward Avenue in the Norwood Park area of North Asheville, NC. This weekend art show and sale is free and open to the public.

This year’s annual event will feature new art work created by five Voorhees family members along with two guest artists. The event will again be featured in a family home in Norwood Park, this year at Susan’s house. Meet this extraordinary family of artists known throughout North Carolina and the Southeast. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to MANNA FoodBank and to Kiva, helping others locally and globally.

The arts legacy began with Edwin Voorhees, (1919-1999) known for his NC coastal watercolor seascapes; and Mildred Voorhees and now their children and grandchildren. Mildred, (1924-2007) was best known for her colorful, patterned watercolors and rich oil still lifes and landscapes. Reproductions of Edwin and Mildred’s artwork will be available.

Edwin had long wanted to host a family art show as a way of gathering the clan and sharing the varied talents of those working in the arts. So, the first Voorhees Family Art Show was held in the family home in Morehead City, NC, in 1998. Edwin passed away the next year but the Voorhees Family Art Show continued in Morehead for several years. In later years the show was held in Asheville in addition to Morehead City. With Mildred’s move to Asheville the show followed with it being hosted in one of several Voorhees family homes in North Asheville. This year’s show celebrates the 20th show for the Voorhees Family and continues the legacy begun by Edwin Voorhees back in 1998.

Three of Edwin and Mildred’s six children plus one grandchild and a daughter-in-law will be showing their work at this event including: Susan Voorhees, oil and pastel paintings; Jane Voorhees, watercolors, pastels, prints, cards and calendars; David Voorhees, wood-fired stoneware and porcelain pottery; David’s wife, Molly Sharp Voorhees, sterling silver jewelry, some incorporating natural beach stones; and David’s daughter Elizabeth Voorhees Becker, color photography. Also exhibiting are guest artists Chad Alice Hagen, felted art and handmade books and Cheryl Stippich, stained glass.

complete isolation to that of total inter-relatedness, she has made a series of paintings spanning fourteen linear feet with well over 8,000 painted lines.

The color palette is comprised of a variety of skin tones to show that wherever we are, our life experiences and social conditionings shape our perceptions. Each line represents a person somewhere on this earth, with a wish that they may know love and a sense of belonging in community.

Working at her studio in Pink Dog Creative in the River Arts District of Asheville, Miles has loved talking with many studio visitors about the work. Her favorite guests have been the children that have sat in front of these paintings. “How many lines do you see,” she will ask. “A million,” one will say. “No, a billion.” The artist hopes these pieces will provide a place for people to start a dialog about our unique differences and the common threads we all share.

“This project was so humbling,” says Miles, “sending me on a journey to uncover my own blindness and the illusions of separateness I have created for myself. It has been a transformative experience.”

Toe River Arts Council in Burnsville, NC, Offers Works by Mary Ruth Webb

Mary Ruth Webb is an artist. Her show Conversions will mark the end of the year at the Toe River Arts Burnsville Gallery with an expressive display of determination, and talent. This final 2017 exhibition begins Nov. 25, and culminates on Dec. 30, 2017. On Dec. 15 from 5 to 7pm, Toe River Arts will host a free reception welcoming the public to meet the artist and share the delicate intricacy and mystery of her work.

Webb is a sculptor, book maker, and two-dimensional and digital artist. Her work draws you in, causes you to think, ask a question. Yet, at the same time, her images engage your eyes with the beauty of detail.

sponding large clay sculptures on pedestals that anchor the room coupled with a balancing smaller series on the other side give you that opportunity of becoming part of the whole.

“My work is evolutionary. It represents my personal transition to freedom from the stifling existence of the female role in my family of origin,” says Webb. “The work reflects my journey from a childhood of fear- and shamed-based religious fundamentalism to the freedom of my own hard-won spirituality. The exhibit reflects my belief that one cannot find inner peace as the result of influences from others and that it cannot be genuine if it comes from someone else’s belief system.”

“Conversions expresses both the subject matter and the working modes involved in creating my sculptures...from drawings, both traditional and digital, to the ceramic pieces, and vice-versa,” adds Webb.

Toe River Arts Council in Spruce Pine, NC, Offers Annual Studio Tour Exhibit

It’s only the very beginning of the holiday season in the mountains, but already leaves have turned brilliant and fallen, holiday get-togethers are being planned and the Toe River Arts Studio Tour Participant Exhibition is about to begin - Nov. 18 through Dec. 30, 2017, at their Spruce Pine Gallery in Spruce Pine, NC. It may be too soon to enjoy a real nip in the air, but not too early to visit the gallery and see work from all the artists on this year’s Holiday Tour (Dec. 1-3). A reception will be held at the gallery on Dec. 1, beginning at 5:30pm on the first evening of the tour.

With over 100 artists in the 58 studios submitting work, the walls and the pedestals will be filled from gallery front to back with new and exciting work. And this tour features 13 artists - new or returning after a multi-year hiatus.

The exhibit is always a highlight of the season. This year is no different with 52 clay artists, 20 glass, and eight wood workers. And hand-made bookmakers and basket weavers, guitar and flute makers, workers in pencil, pastels, and oils, and from behind the lens of a camera, photographers. Mediums run the gamut from concrete to paper mâché to polymer. Pieces are displayed geographically so one can plan a tour route or a visit to a particular studio the next day. A 44-page guide is available free and contains detailed directions and maps. And because most studios are open year-round (please call ahead), you can visit anytime. But, if you just can’t “do” the tour and can’t wait another moment, all the works on display at the Spruce Pine Gallery are for sale.

If the participant exhibition is the highlight of the season, then the opening night reception is the crown jewel. At 5:30pm on the first evening of the tour (Dec. 1), folks meander back after a day of touring to enjoy a glass of wine and some delicious appetizers provided by volunteer artist participants. They look over who they visited, who they missed, and who to visit on Saturday. The gallery is packed with visitors and artists sharing stories of their day and all the hopes for the weekend. It’s one of the biggest events of the year, and it’s all free and open to the public.

So, dates to remember. The exhibit Saturday, Nov. 18 through Dec. 30. (Gallery hours 10:30am to 5pm, Tue.–Sat.) The reception from 5:30 to 7:30pm on Friday, Dec. 1. And the Studio Tour, always the first weekend of the month - Dec. 1-3, 10am to 5pm all three days.

Asheville Art Museum On The Slope in Asheville Offers Gifts from Peter Norton

The Asheville Art Museum On The Slope in Asheville, NC, is presenting an exhibit of Peter Norton Gifts, on view through Jan. 21, 2018.

Every year since 1988, technology entrepreneur and art collector Peter Norton commissions an artist to create an original work of art that is then produced in multiples and sent to friends and select art institutions. The Asheville Art Museum is honored to be an annual recipient of the Norton Family Christmas Project since 1993 and is excited to present a selection of these gifts in a new exhibition titled Unwrapped: Gifts from the Peter Norton Family Christmas Project.

Committed to helping promote and launch the careers of his favorite artists, Norton often selects individuals who are up-and-coming in the art world, making the project an opportunity to introduce new talent to a community of curators. Though small in scale so they can fit in the mail, works by artists such as Sanford Biggers, Vik Muniz and Kara Walker confront big issues of racism and class disparity. The experience of these works promotes understanding and connects viewers with artists from across the globe.

The Asheville Art Museum On The Slope is the Museum’s temporarily location.

Mona Wu presents a series of monoprints with images focused on botanical matters. However the carefree approach to making random prints is the intended goal. Using cutout acetate shapes and randomly selected old carved wood boards, Wu makes these prints relying on her intuition for placement, ink application, layering of papers, etc. This fresh approach exemplifies the unpredictable nature of Printmak-

North Carolina Pottery Center in Seagrove, NC, Features Works by ECU Ceramics Guild

North Carolina Pottery Center in Seagrove, NC, is presenting Atmospheric Shift featuring works by the ECU Ceramics Guild, on view through Nov. 25, 2017.

As part of the ongoing collaboration between the North Carolina Pottery Center and East Carolina University's School of Art & Design and Ceramics Program, we are pleased to present Atmospheric Shift by members of the ECU Ceramics Guild.

Atmospheric Shift - When clay is fired it goes through several molecular changes, and the internal structure shifts to a permanent state. During this process, the atmosphere inside the kiln goes through shifts as well. The atmosphere is changed by heat and the separation of water molecules and other organic compounds. This is especially true in kilns fired using organic fuel such as gas or wood. At ECU, students experiment with different fuel types, firing methods, and firing atmospheres to achieve unique surfaces and finish qualities on their creative work. The pieces in Atmospheric Shift showcase the variety and beauty can result.

Representing the ECU Ceramics Guild: Allean Carpenter (Greenville, NC); Robin Carter (St. Mary, GA); Rachel Clark (Greenville, NC); Lacey Hargroder

(Greenville, NC); Haley Jackson (Greenville, NC); Grace Joyner (Rocky Mount, NC); Elizabeth Kerr (Kernersville, NC); Kelsey Lineberger (Wilson, NC); Heather McLelland (Kinston, NC); Samantha Mejia (Raleigh, NC); Aleix Murphy (Wallace, NC); Ronson Shultz (Greenville, NC); and Allison Stokely (Durham, NC).

Some of the pieces in this show will be available for purchase. If purchased, a piece must remain in the exhibition through its end date.

Exhibitions are made possible through the generosity of our membership, the Mary and Elliott Wood Foundation, the John W. and Anna H. Hanes Foundation, and the Goodnight Educational Foundation. This project was supported by the NC Arts Council, a division of the Department of Cultural Resources, with funding from the National Endowment for the Arts. Thank you!

The mission of the North Carolina Pottery Center is to promote public awareness of and appreciation for the history, heritage, and ongoing tradition of pottery making in North Carolina.

Two months of designing, throwing and handbuilding and two weeks of glazing were followed by five arduous days of loading during steamy Hurricane Nate weather that made a mountain of the slope from shop door to kiln door! Next came four days of around-the-clock tending, with the generous help of volunteer kiln crew, to reach a peak temperature of over 2300 degrees. Zenith cooled for a week before the results could be seen. It's hard to be patient, but all that refractory material - bricks, shelves, posts and pots - holds heat for a long time.

Sunset River Marketplace in Calabash, NC, Offers Works by Art Matters Group

Sunset River Marketplace in Calabash, NC, will present Out of the Box, featuring works by members of the Art Matters group, on view from Nov. 2 through Dec. 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 11, from 1-4pm.

Last year's Out of the Box show was so popular, the gallery decided to present a similarly innovative exhibition with brand new works for 2017. The Art Matters group began in 2006 as a pastel class, which was taught by noted North Myrtle Beach, SC, artist Jane Staszak. The lively and talented group dubbed themselves the Pastel Sisters and had their first group show at Sunset River Marketplace in 2010. Since then the class has evolved into an open studio where they often explore media other than pastel. In 2012, in order to cover a broader range of style and work, they changed their name to Art Matters.

Participating in the show will be Jane Staszak, Nancy Guiry, Linda Young, Beryl Kirkpatrick, Susan Nern, Tina Lepsig, Sue Ruopp, Joanne Bendy, and Adrienne Johnston.

Sunset River Marketplace will be kicking off the Holiday season with the Out of the Box reception, so there will be plenty of holiday treats, spirits, free gift certificate drawings, Holiday pottery, gifts and more.

Sunset River Marketplace showcases work by approximately 150 North and South Carolina artists, and houses some 10,000 square feet of oils, acrylics, watercolors, pastels, mixed media, art glass, fabric art, pottery, sculpture, turned and carved wood and artisan-created jewelry. There are two onsite kilns and four wheels used by students in the ongoing pottery classes offered by the gallery. A custom framing department is available. There are painting classes as well as workshops by nationally and regionally known artists.

Arts Council of Fayetteville/Cumberland County in Fayetteville, NC, Offers Exhibition of Recycled Works

The Arts Council of Fayetteville/Cumberland County in Fayetteville, NC, is present the exhibit, Reclaimed, on view through Dec. 16, 2017.

Reclaimed has been described as an exhibition of unique works of art which promote recycling by encouraging the reuse of materials in new and creative forms.

Do not allow the term "recycle" to bring to mind the usual crafty items - in Reclaimed, we witness the intersection of art and imagination. Humble origins forgotten, the nine artists exhibiting in this show repurpose materials with no perceived value as they bring inner visions to life.

While the final product varies, the artists are driven by a belief in sustainability, resourcefulness, nature, and the renewed understanding of change that the art inspires in viewers. More than two dozen works in steel, wood, paint, and even broken records await you at Reclaimed.

The exhibition is sponsored by The City of Fayetteville's Environmental Services Department and Waste Management.

The Arts Council of Fayetteville/Cumberland County was founded in 1973. As a link between artists, arts and cultural organizations and the community, the nonprofit agency administers programs in partnership with a variety of local agencies to stimulate community development through the arts. The Arts Council supports individual creativity, cultural preservation, economic development and lifelong learning through the arts.

NC Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, NC, will present Donna Hodgins: Lens on Israel, featuring photography, on view in the Mims Gallery, from Nov. 2 through Dec. 10, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 2, beginning at 5pm.

It is rare that we have the privilege to get an insider's view of the Holy Land and that is what Donna Hodgins has made possible with her camera and familiarity with her adopted homeland Israel. The exhibition offers the opportunity to see various wondrous and beautiful aspects of Israel, ancient and contemporary.

Hodgins states that Israel, "...is a land of contradictions and juxtapositions; ancient and modern, arid and agrarian, spiritual and secular. It truly wears a coat of many colors. Israel is constantly in our prayers, but little is known or understood of its day to day. This collection of photographs is my attempt to capture the essence of the land and its people that I have come to love for these past forty years. My challenge was how to capture the spirituality of this sacred place, conjure the smells and flavors of the open market, and convey the love of life and reverence for the fallen that is the spirit of Israel."

A native of New York, Hodgins received her BA from SUNY Albany in

She worked as a designer for twenty years and throughout her life has explored all facets of the arts from photography to dance. In 2014 she opened her own photography business Art in Deezign. She has exhibited her photographs throughout eastern North Carolina from Raleigh's Carolina Fine Arts Exhibition, New Bern's Bank of the Arts and the Lowe's Gallery in Tarboro to name a few.

The photographs on view are also available for sale.

Carolina Creations in New Bern, NC, Offers Work by Marine Artist Gabe Flynn

Carolina Creations in New Bern, NC, will feature artwork by Gabe Flynn, an active duty marine stationed at Cherry Point, during the month of November. Meet Flynn in the gallery during the November Art Walk.

Gabe Flynn has been drawing cartoons since he joined the Marine Corps. His artwork can be seen throughout the Marine Corps as training aids, military gifts and retirements, donations for scholarships and published in the 2003-2017 Leatherneck Magazine issues.

Flynn says his artistic ability has been handed down from his Mom and a God given talent. His drawings took off when he was a Lance Corporal on ship and he has continued to paint the humor and teamwork that the Marines bring to the fight every day.

He prefers to use watercolor for most of his 11X14 limited reproductions and smaller scale unlimited reproduction. Flynn Art has been approved by USMC Trademark Office and is made in the USA.

His most recent 2017 picture has been driven by the many outstanding performances by the 2nd Marine Air Wing Band. Drill and ceremonies are a part of Marine traditions and the band always makes every event special and each ceremony memorable.

The Sanctuary Gallery in New Bern, NC, Features Works by Jude Lobe

The Sanctuary Gallery in New Bern, NC, is presenting SMALL FOR FALL, featuring works by Jude Lobe, on view through Nov. 30, 2017.

The Sanctuary Gallery is New Bern's newest art gallery and is artist owned and operated representing regional and national artists. The fine art and fine craft gallery has a diverse collection of paintings, drawings, sculpture and hand-crafted jewelry.

Jude Lobe works as a graphic designer and visual artist, nature is her muse. A love of nature has been a continual thread throughout her life and Lobe's paintings and enamels are inspired by the natural environment. "My desire is to capture the emotion of the scene with texture, brush strokes, glazes and colors chosen from the palette of the environment I'm painting. It's the memory of the place or experience that I want to express." Lobe's process begins with a walk outside, then followed with quick sketches and color notes. Then back at the studio to begin painting the images remembered.

As a professional artist having to pay 40% - 50% commission to galleries, Lobe began looking for alternative ways to sell art. Over the past two decades, some artists have found that owning and running their own gallery by themselves or with several other artists can be very successful. In 2007, she joined with 14 other artists to open Hillsborough Gallery of Arts outside Chapel Hill, NC. This year the gallery has celebrated its 10th anniversary.

Some reasons an artist may want to open their own gallery. The artist is in charge of what gets exhibited. It also brings you together with other artists where you can exchange ideas about art. It becomes a space to experiment in your creative arena and test drive it to potential customers. You get to talk with clients and hear what they have to say about your art. So why would an artist who is successful in their own gallery be willing to exhibit in another gallery?

"When I heard that artist Chris Wagner was opening his own gallery and was looking for artists to exhibit in his gallery, I was eager to support another fellow artist's endeavor", replies Lobe. "He has taken a sad looking building and completely renovated it and made an elegant space for art. The space is fresh, contemporary, inviting and designed to highlight artworks. It was hard to turn him down. And I am also a huge fan and owner of his artwork."

In the last five years, Lobe has been painting less in oils and concentrating on cold wax & oil and encaustics (hot wax). Her theme is earth and sky and the connections between us and the natural world. "As a part of nature, I believe we need to respect the connection we have with the natural environment and with others. In nature things change, evolve. Like a forest goes through an ecological succession, so do we as individuals evolve and are at present a compilation of bits and pieces of the experiences we traveled."

This idea Lobe translates in her art and finds the cold wax and oil lends itself perfectly in expressing this idea. It affords the opportunity to show a history of the painting by building up layers, obscuring what's beneath, and removing layers to reveal bits of past layers. It represents the history of a life that becomes the compilation of bits and pieces of its past experiences.

As a regular exhibitor at the Sanctuary Gallery, Lobe shows her works in cold wax & oil, encaustics and oil paintings.

New Bern is a charming place to visit any time of year. The Small for Fall event at the Sanctuary Gallery would be well worth a stop on your trip. And you might even catch Chris painting, as he has his studio set up within a space in the gallery.

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, Offers Two New Exhibitions

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, will present two new exhibits including: Drawn Together, featuring works by Kiki Farish, Jean LeCluyse, and Aggie Zed, and Concept to Gallery, featuring the work of six local photographers. Both exhibitions will be on view from Nov. 7 through Dec. 22, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 10, from 6-9pm.

Drawing is often seen as the preparation for a masterpiece - the precursor to a painting or formulation for a sculpture. However, the artists presented at FRANK Gallery in November and December are "drawn together" through the skill, beauty and mystery of their mixed media drawings and ceramics.

Drawn Together features KiKi Farish and Jean LeCluyse, two highly skilled artists who elevate the art of drawing to create mesmerizing compositions full of intricate details and symbolism. Joined by mixed media ceramicist Aggie Zed, who creates fantastical creatures through the use of three dimensional lines and clay sculptures. Drawn Together will be the final featured exhibition at FRANK Gallery's Franklin Street location before moving to their new home at University Place.

Kiki Farish composes worlds that express how close extremes can be. They are often largely beautiful, while slightly chaotic. She states "Words may appear, but are muffled by marks. Flowers, rendered with great tenderness, are often past their prime. Nothing in these worlds seems rooted or solid; they're fleeting, uncertain, shifting." Her work intends to draw the viewer in, capture their attention, and insist on more than a glance. Farish is known for her pencil paintings which are emotive, conjuring moments of clarity amid the ambiguity of grays.

Jean LeCluyse sees her drawings as richly detailed windows into a 'secret' narratives. The most successful images are ones that many people can relate to and be reminded of some story in their own lives. LeCluyse's background in scientific illustration takes over when working on a graphite drawing, however the mixed media pieces require constant decision making and moment to moment engage-

Aggie Zed divides her working life between sculpture, drawings, and painting. Zed's two-dimensional work is informed by a lifelong celebration of the beauty and strangeness of dreamed posed against the absurdity and poignancy of supposedly rational human activity. Her sculpture ranges from intimately scaled ceramic figures of people and human-animal hybrids, to mixed metal contrivances she calls "scrap floats."

Jean LeCluyse and Kiki Farish will be discussing their work during a special artist talk on the evening of Nov. 16 at 6pm. This is an opportunity to learn how the artists create their complex and detailed works.

Also in November, the Michael and Laura Brader-Araje Community Outreach Gallery presents Concept to Gallery. This exhibition presents the work of six local photographers in the Center for Documentary Studies "Concept to Gallery" course, taught by FRANK Member Artist, Barbara Tyroler.

Chatham Hill Winery in Cary, NC, Offers Works by Natalie Ammarell

Chapel Hill photographer Natalie Ammarell will exhibit photographs that capture the power of the five basic elements of the natural world. The exhibit, Earth, Water, Air, Fire, Space, will be held at Chatham Hill Winery in Cary, NC, from Nov. 1 - 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 12, from 2-4pm.

Fifteen years ago, Ammarell became interested in floral photography and subsequently started a small photo card/calendar business called "Floral Delights". In recent years, as her travels and photography explorations broadened, her attention turned to the large water birds and other wildlife that inhabit coastal and wetland areas.

From earliest times, cultures and civilizations have sought to understand the material wonders forming their natural worlds. Over the centuries, remarkably similar systems emerged across the world for explaining nature in terms of four basic elements - Earth, Water, Fire and Air. Gradually, a fifth element - variously called Space, Void, Aether - was added. In this exhibit, Ammarell offers images that demonstrate the continuing power of these five elements as a framework for experiencing our natural surroundings.

Ammarell has recently retired from a long career as a consultant, teacher and mentor, and health services researcher.

Chatham Hill Winery, located on Chapel Hill Road in Cary, was established in 1999 as the first winery in the Triangle area and the first urban winery in North Carolina. Its mission is to produce distinctive, handcrafted wines of high quality and purity from grapes grown in North Carolina.

Gallery C in Raleigh, NC, Features Work by Elissa Farrow Savos

Gallery C in Raleigh, NC, will present Nevertheless She Persisted, featuring mixed media works by Elissa Farrow Savos, on view from Nov. 1 - 28, 2017. A reception will be held on Nov. 3, from 6-9pm.

Elissa Farrow-Savos, a sculptor who lives in Sterling, VA, has been exhibiting at Gallery C since 2014. Her figurative sculptures are made with polymer clay bodies mounted to found objects. The low-fired polymer clay is then painted with layers of oil paint.

"Every piece I make is about storytelling, each a narrative of some woman somewhere, and every woman everywhere," says Farrow-Savos. "My head is full of the reasons and meanings behind each piece – usually a convoluted combination of a very specific experience with a myriad of emotions and thoughts and opinions that could be many, many words, but instead is this one piece, or maybe two."

There are common themes, such as physical, emotional, and spiritual burdens, connections lost and found, love and anger, dignity and strength," adds Farrow-Savos. "Meanwhile, they keep company with rusty chains, weathered wood, decayed bones, abandoned objects, and scraps of fabric – the debris of life, lived. My women are the same, they show their scars and wear them proudly because after all, they make a good story, if nothing else."

Turchin Center for the Visual Arts, Appalachian State University, 423 West King Street, Boone. Main Gallery, Through Dec. 2 - "Circles of Influence: Barbara Hardy & Bob Ray". The exhibit highlights Barbara Hardy and Bob Ray, artists who have been living and working together for over twenty-five years sharing a deeply rewarding intimate, creative and artistic bond. The influence the artists have on one another and their shared love of rich texture and layered patterns will be immediately apparent even though each artist's practice and techniques are unique and quite different from one other. Bridge Gallery, Through Nov. 4 - "Wayne Trapp, A Life in the Arts". Trapp was an enigmatic artist; some would say a Renaissance man - the consummate artist who does a bit of everything, always executing his chosen craft well. This exhibition features a variety of Trapp's creative work: paintings, drawings in pencil and ink on paper and intimate sculptural forms in bronze and steel. Mayer Gallery, Through Jan. 6, 2018 - "Garden of Biotanical Delights: Diane Kempler". Although Diane Kempler and Hieronymus Bosch work in different media and are, forgive the obvious, from vastly different cultural eras, there is something about Kempler's wildly gesturing ceramic forms that remind me of Bosch's passionately overpopulated paintings. It is not just the similarity of the titles, Kempler's nod to the Dutch Renaissance artist. Just as Bosch's seminal painting, "The Garden of Earthly Delights" seduces the viewer with the richness of macroscopic life, Kempler's "Garden of Biotanical Delights" achieves the same effect with the richness of life seen through a microscope. Gallery A, Through Jan. 6, 2018 - "Taking Tea: Judith Gregory". Gregory transforms the Turchin Center's Gallery A into a tranquil tea house for meditation, contemplation and intimate conversation. As the world rapidly changes outside the walls of the center, sanctuary becomes all the more important as we try to make sense of our place in the universal village through ceremony and interpretation. Constructed from used tea bags and loose tea leaves, "Taking Tea" creates an immersion in a quiet, delicately scented world. Come for a moment, stay for an hour, the Turchin Center invites visitors to find shelter and inspiration through the visual arts. A university art gallery is a safe place to think and talk about ideas with all peoples regardless of race, religion, gender identity, political persuasion—you name it—with respect and active listening. What better place than a tea house to cross cultural barriers and find common ground. Gallery B, Through Jan. 6, 2018 - "Spectacle & Scaffolding: Contemporary Photography Muses Hierarchy," guest curated by Ann Pegelow Kaplan. The exhibit features the works of contemporary photographic artists who explore the underlying power structures that we live with and participate in daily, but which often seem invisible. Mark Curran, Trevor Paglen, Greta Pratt, and elin O'Hara slavick reflect upon systems that inscribe and maintain power differentials in the United States and beyond, including the market economy, the labor system and workers, technology and surveillance, the relationship of patriotism to the nation-state, and hierarchical social categories such as race, gender, class, and nationality. Hours: 10am-6pm, Tue., Wed., Thur., & Sat. and Fri., noon-8pm. Contact: Hank T. Foreman at 828/262-3017 or at (www.turchincenter.org).

This exhibition is part of the elegant re-installation of the Ackland's Asian galleries. The Ackland recently acquired—by gift and purchase from the distinguished collection of Norma Canelas Roth and William Roth of Winter Haven, Florida—29 fine pieces of nineteenth- and twentieth-century beadwork by peoples of the South East Cape region of what is now South Africa. Few museums can claim such rich holdings. South African beadwork is an art of vibrant colors, sophisticated patterns, and varied textures. The works on view derive from three principal population groups in the area: the Mfengu, the Zulu, and the Ndebele. Of particular note are rare examples of nineteenth-century beadwork, probably collected by European Christian missionaries. Through Jan. 7, 2018 - "Flash of Light, Fog of War: Japanese Military Prints, 1894-1905". The exhibit examines how Japanese printmakers, in response to First Sino-Japanese War and the Russo-Japanese War, created dynamic compositions - soldiers silhouetted against fiery pyrotechnic explosions, beams of bright white electrical light illuminating the hulls of steel warships, and the haze of spent gunpowder obscuring the brutal combat of the battlefield - that were part reportage and part dazzling artistic display. Through Aug. 31, 2018 - "Patrick Dougherty: Stickwork". The Ackland Art Museum has commissioned its first major site-specific, outdoor art installation in nearly 20 years: a "stickwork" by Chapel Hill-based artist Patrick Dougherty. As yet untitled, the large-scale work will be made entirely of tree saplings. The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steuben Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo, OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their works to a market economy. "Untitled", by Baldomero Robles, Created: 2011-2015, From the series: Loö Litz Beë.

Mint Museum Uptown, Levine Center for the Arts, 500 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Through June 17, 2018 - "Develar y detonar (Reveal and Detonate)," features the powerful, thought-provoking work of more than 40 of Mexico's leading photographers. This not-to-be-missed exhibition examines the wide range of approaches that these photographers use to explore subjects, ranging from their own personal histories and relationships to their engagement with the country's diverse landscape to pressing social and political issues ranging from land use, drug trade, and immigration to beauty, sexuality, and gender. Ranging in size from a few inches across to floor-to-ceiling murals, some of these works are highly formal; others make a play for sheer beauty; still others are manipulated or staged to instill a sense of magic and wonder. Develar y detonar promises to open an engaging dialogue around the power of photography to both document and question many aspects of modern life, examining issues that are not isolated to residents of Mexico but that stretch across cultures and borders, connecting us all. Through June 3, 2018 - "William Ivey Long: Costume Designs 2007-2016". The exhibition explores the 50-year history of the Ebony Fashion Fair (1958-2009), an unparalleled charity fashion show event that redefined the concepts of beauty, fashion, and empowerment for African Americans. It features 40 stunning ensembles by designers such as Stephen Burrows, Pierre Cardin, Christian Dior, Givenchy, Patrick Kelly, Christian Lacroix, Yves Saint Laurent, Bob Mackie, Alexander McQueen, b. Michael, Missoni, Jean Patou, and Vivienne Westwood. The exhibition also includes archival photographs and memorabilia from "Ebony" magazine and Ebony Fashion Fair. Joyce W. Pope Gallery, Through - Dec. 31 - "Donald Sultan: The Disaster Paintings". Each of these 11 paintings, created between 1984 and 1990, is an imposing, industrial-like structure, reinforced by Sultan's preferred media of Masonite tiles and tar. The resilience of his materials contrasts with his subject matter: fires, floods, and industrial catastrophes, which provoke feelings of fear, instability, and frailty. These large-scale paintings, most of which measure eight feet square, are heavy and dense, bringing a serious permanence to calamities that are often over in a flash. Sultan's images force us to confront the realities of contemporary life and dare us to remember the long-term effects of each accident or reaction. East Building, Level B, Through Jan. 28, 2018 - "Andrea Donnelly: We've Met Before". North Carolina-raised artist Andrea Donnelly explores the dynamic between the formulaic methods of handwoven cloth and the impulsiveness of ink in the creation of her larger-than-life textiles, featuring images of the human body, blots, and delicate floral abstractions. Her art furnishes both mental and physical spaces by creating an intimate, tactile relationship between the viewer and cloth. She employs photography to create the silhouettes within her work, giving her art a precision that reiterates the meticulous process of hand weaving fiber. Calling her work "a literal record of its making," Donnelly uses textiles to replicate the process of creating a mirror image on paper with ink through dyeing, weaving, unweaving, and weaving again. East Building, Level B, Video Gallery, Through Jan. 28, 2018 - "Sabine Gruffat: A Kiss of the Earth". The exhibit is an interactive computer-animated video and sound installation inspired by Sergei Diaghilev's revolutionary 1913 Ballets Russes production of The Rite of Spring, scored by Igor Stravinsky. It is the story of a pagan tribe calling on its deities to restore the earth, a drama that ends with a sacrificial maiden's dancing herself to death. East Building, Level B, Allen G. Thomas Jr. Photography Gallery, Through Jan. 28, 2018 - "Night(Light)". The exhibit explores light as it interacts with darkness in photography. In its purest form, photography harnesses light. The images give shape to light, immortalizing and suspending it. The eerie feeling of night is not lost in these photographs from the Museum's permanent collection. East Building, Level B, Julian T. Baker Jr. Photography Gallery, Through Jan. 28, 2018 - "Rhythmic Vitality: Photographs by Barbara Morgan". This exhibition features photographs by Barbara Morgan from the NCMA's permanent collection. Although Morgan, one of the founders of the photography magazine Aperture, is best known for her studies of modern dance, she also created photomontages and light drawings. Morgan said: "Whether my work is large or small, abstract or realistic, the one thing that must be present is rhythmic vitality...it doesn't matter if it is dance or montage or people or nature. There always has to be the presence of energy." African Art Gallery, East Building, Level A, Ongoing - Featuring African creativity spanning 16 centuries. The new gallery will be three times as large as the old West Building gallery, allowing the Museum to display nearly twice as many works - including some that have not been on view in a decade, and others that are newly acquired and have never before been through Dec. 3, 2017. Jarrard-Dimond's first academic exposure to fine art came while attending painting and drawing classes at the Winthrop College. It was then that she began to notice a distinct difference between her approach to creating art and that of her classmates. Over the past thirty years, Jarrard-Dimond's use of overlapping marks, layered materials, and literal woven elements, has explored continuous themes of interconnectedness. The artworks on exhibit will include early sculptural works which utilize found objects in conjunction with constructed forms, as well as Jarrard-Dimond's later explorations in large scale geometric compositions using hand-dyed, contemporary textiles. Finally the exhibition will look at several works from her more recent two-dimensional experiments with hot wax encaustic and paint. The Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum in Wilmington, NC, is presenting Created by Light, an exhibit exploring the photography collections of nine North Carolina art museums, on view through Feb. 11, 2018. The exhibition will showcase over 100 photographs highlighting both the pioneers of the medium and contemporary artists working in the field today. CAM invited eight North Carolina art museums to participate in this collaborative exhibition, asking each to curate which photographs to feature from their permanent collections. One museum focused on Bauhaus works created between the world wars, another curated a body of work by North Carolina photographers, while others chose work by such well-known artists as Robert Mapplethorpe, Andres Serrano, Mickalene Thomas, Burk Uzzle, Edward Weston, Aaron Siskind, Francesca Woodman and Ansel Adams. For further information call the Museum at 910/395-5999 or visit (www.cameronartmuseum.org).
