Celebrate the season with us and enjoy the many new works by the gallery's artists: Evgeny and Lydia Baranov, Lindsay Goodwin, Jeff Jamison, Hope Reis, Christian Snedeker, Aleksander Titovets, Lyuba Titovets, and more. We have a great selection of paintings, sculpture, photography, jewelry and porcelains. Let the experienced staff at the gallery assist you in finding a unique gift for the special people in your life. We are also happy to gift wrap. Please join us for a Gallery Open House on Friday, Dec, 4th from 10am to 8pm.

Evgeny and Lydia Baranov are originally from Moscow, Russia, and became citizens more than two decades ago. They presently reside in Pebble Beach but spend most of the year traveling. They are plein air painters who often collaborate on their canvases. They started this tradition when they came to America. They enjoy painting figurative scenes in European towns, maritime scenes of colorful villages, as well as breathtaking still lifes.

Lindsay Goodwin's summer sojourns abroad have yielded more inviting interiors as well as architectural exteriors. Jeff Jamison's travel and imagination combine with a unique perspective in urban scenes. Hope Reis' new works include both casual interiors and figurative scenes; both have her signature easy elegance.

Originally from St. Petersburg, Russia, the Titovets make their home in western Texas. He is known for his rich and dreamy snow scenes while she is best known for her vibrant and whimsical still lifes as well as Russian Folk scenes. Aleksander Titovets also is a portrait painter and has commissions hanging around the world including one of First Lady Laura Bush in the Smithsonian Institution. Eight new oil paintings will be arriving from the Titovets just in time for the Open House. The lowcountry landscape continues to be a favorite subject for realist painter Chris Snedeker. His new works bring the viewer into a tranquil state of relaxation as well as increasing their appreciation of the South Carolina coast.

We also have a new unique luminous porcelain designed to hang on the wall by Anna Kasabian. Cove Waves, Half Moon Beach measures 20" x 16". Its texture is reminiscent of water or seashells. Like much of Kasabian's work, it was inspired by the sea.

We invite you to visit us soon. Ella Walton Richardson Fine Art's building was built in the late 1700s/early 1800s. It has high ceilings, hardwood floors, and fireplaces with exposed brick. Two sets of double doors open to historic Broad Street and another set open to a quaint courtyard. We wish everyone good health and many blessings in the coming year. Our hearts are bursting with gratitude as we give thanks for our dear friends, family and patrons. Thank you for allowing us the opportunity to bring art into your lives. We believe that great artwork transforms both your surroundings and your soul.

Wildlife photographer Steve Ellwood has spent thousands of days in the prone position perfecting the art of ground-level shooting, inching his way into the confidence of wary shorebirds and wading birds throughout coastal South Carolina and Florida. Now, after decades of painstaking attention to his craft, Ellwood has brought together nearly 200 of his most powerful images in his new book: In the Moment: A Photo Journal by Steve Ellwood.

The book is an 80-page, limited edition collection of beautiful images gathered from the beaches, tidal marshes and maritime forests of his home state of South Carolina and his favorite haunts along the Florida coast. It is now available at InTheMomentBook.com.

Ellwood's photos seem to leap off the page – from the startling to humorous, remarkable images of intimate moments in the lives of majestic raptors, delicate hummingbirds, and the occasional clownish goofiness of wading birds, stalking and splashing for prey.

"I like the serenity of being out there, just me connecting with nature," Ellwood said of his decades trekking the beaches and marshes, through early mornings and fading evenings. "When you have a flock of Snowy Egret approach five feet from you, and they just go about what they're doing, you know you're accepted, you're not a threat. That's when I know I'm doing everything right."
