Bulldog Pottery in Seagrove, NC, Hosts Annual Gathering of Potters

Bulldog Pottery in Seagrove, NC, will present the 6th Annual Cousins in Clay, taking place May 31 and June 1, 2014.

Work by Bruce Gholson

Bulldog Pottery, potters Bruce Gholson and Samantha Henneke are sprucing up their studio in central North Carolina in the rural pottery community of Seagrove. There they will host a show and sale of contemporary ceramic art, "Cousins in Clay," with their mountain potter cousin Michael Kline. Their two special guest ceramic artists are Dan Anderson and Blair Clemo. Their kinship is based on a shared appreciation for the pursuit of excellence within the diverse language of clay. In other words, "They Dig Clay." These five nationally known studio art potters will gather together to sell their work and talk with the public about making art that comes from the earth under their feet.

This two-day event begins Saturday, May 31 at 10am and continues to 5pm. And on Saturday, for an added touch of enjoyment, Chronis Pou Vasiliou of Greensboro, NC, will fill the air with his enchanting Greek Bouzouki music while you visit with the "Cousins in Clay." The event continues on Sunday from 10am-5pm with the annual Potters' Potluck starting at noon. All are welcome to bring a dish to share and enjoy.

Work by Blair Clemo

There is a long traditional history of working potters making and selling pots in Seagrove, and this tradition remains strong and continues to grow in new ways with "Cousins in Clay." Bruce Gholson and Samantha Henneke settled into the Seagrove community of sixty-plus potteries, seventeen years ago to make studio art pot-
