Gibbes Museum of Art

The Gibbes Museum of Art, in Charleston, SC, home to one of the foremost collections of American art, will celebrate the art and storytelling power of film and photography with the launch of an all-new, in-person film series, “Gibbes Film in Focus”, and a virtual lecture series, “Depth of Field: Perspectives on 20th Century Photography.” Launching in February 2021, both programs will coincide with the Gibbes’ exhibition, In Body and Soul: The Figure in Modernist Photography, on display in the Museum’s Gallery 9, through Apr. 18, 2021.

“We are thrilled to share the illustrious mediums of film and photography with our community,” says Angela Mack, executive director of the Gibbes Museum of Art. “The Gibbes always strives to inspire and engage our audiences in new ways as well as provide opportunities to learn, discover and experience new art and artists.”

Marks moved to New York in his twenties where he established a prolific career as a freelance writer for the nation’s top newspapers and magazines including Esquire, The New York Times, and The Saturday Evening Post among many others. His journalistic pursuits gained him insider access to the latest cultural events in the world of art, music, and theater. He mingled among the most select artistic circles of mid-century New York. He traveled extensively and interviewed celebrities including many Hollywood stars such as Sophia Loren and Audrey Hepburn. Throughout his career Marks’ interests and writings ranged widely from the arts to mathematics to philosophy. In 1958 he published his first novel The Horizontal Hour that was featured very briefly on The New York Times Best Seller list. He followed this with The Story of Hypnotism and several books with his good friend, the renowned designer and futurist inventor Buckminster Fuller. Despite his long and prolific career in the publishing industry, Marks made his most memorable and financially successful splash as an author late in life with a series of erotic romance novels set in Charleston and published under a pen name John Colleton. So successful was the series of novels, Marks returned to Charleston in 1973 and remained here for the rest of his life.

Drawn from the Robert Marks Collection, this exhibition features thirty photographs by renowned 20th century photographers. From Alfred Stieglitz’s intimate composite portraits of Georgia O’Keeffe to Lewis Hine’s depictions of American laborers, modernist-era photographers radically shifted how the human body was captured on film and for what purpose. Employing a variety of techniques from cropping and zooming, to distortion and framing, photographers explored the human figure for social, performative, voyeuristic, and documentary purposes. Highlights include the work of Stieglitz, Hine, Berenice Abbott, Margaret Bourke-White, George Platt Lynes and László Moholy-Nagy. The exhibition is made possible by a substantial collection of photographs given to the Gibbes in 1974 by Charleston native, Robert Marks (1874–1940). The Robert Marks Collection, 160 photographs strong, to the Gibbes in 1974 by Charleston native, Robert Marks (1907–1993). The Robert Marks Collection, 160 photographs strong, was given to the museum by Charleston native, Robert Marks, in 1974. Whimsy Joy© by Roz

“Roz’s SEAHORSE is a very HAPPY SOUL! It brings COLOR and LIFE to all who say ‘HI’ and gently waves to you as you say ‘GOOD-BYE.’

Come to visit; the lake is its home. Come in and meet Panda, the little 4 lb. princess dog. She will give you a HUG and steal your HEART.

You will know you’re OK as you say ‘GOOD-BYE,’ because Panda and the SEAHORSE are here!”
