Hillsborough Gallery of Arts

continued from Page 31

It's always time to make room for joy in our

Textile artist Alice Levinson says about the work she's presenting in the current show, "In 2010 I returned to art-making after a two year hiatus following a house fire which destroyed my home and studio. With that first work I reclaimed the joy I experience when creative curiosity marries with the work of my hands, when my inner world is freed to 'speak' through my art-making. I think of my work as 'sewn poems', as narrative and feeling find a voice in cloth. The work presented here is based on that earlier work. Several of the pieces are built from the remnants of others. The juxtaposition of positive and negative spaces, shadow and form, signify the experience of loss and reequilibration, transition and change, which are constants in our human experience."

Owned and operated by 21 local artists, HGA represents these established artists exhibiting contemporary fine art and fine craft. The Gallery's offerings include paintings, sculpture, ceramics, photography, textiles, jewelry, glass, metals, encaustic, enamel, and wood.

Work by Susan Hope

This program is supported, in part, by a grant from the Orange County Arts Commission (funding from the North Carolina Arts Council, a division of the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources.) We also thank Orange County Emergency Small Business Funding Program.

For further information check our NC Commercial Gallery listings, call the gallery at 919/732-5001 or visit (HillsboroughGallery.com).

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, Offers Works by Eduardo Lapetina, Pete Rodrigues, & Lynn Wartski

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, will present Interconnected Visions, featuring works by Eduardo Lapetina, Pete Rodrigues, Lynn Wartski, on view from May 24 through June 19, 2022. A reception will be held on May 27, from 6-9pm.

"I wanted the present work to have a fresh outlook with an explosion of vibrant colors, impactful textures and messages of hope. I want my journey in art to be a natural orchestration of my experiences and

Art, the expression of creative skill and imagination, is what furniture maker Pete Rodrigues displays in the Interconnected Visions show. One sees his skill in the way in which the pieces are constructed and discovers his imagination in the design and uniqueness of each piece. "My pieces in this show use a mixture of wood tones, curves and angles to create functional pieces of furniture to be enjoyed both now and by future generations."

Work by Lynn Wartski

Lynn Wartski's work continues to be centered on anthropomorphic figure pieces created primarily out of needle felted wool over the wire and quilt batting armature she creates. "I've found that I increasingly challenge myself to imbue these figures with their human-like characteristics as minimally as possible. I strive to have the gesture and expression of the animal tell the story rather than simply having them dressed up in clothing. I constantly look to evoke a sense of wonder, tell a story, or offer a bit of humor. My work is most often lighthearted, but occasionally my animal creations have a bit more to say.

Work by Pete Rodrigues

Owned and operated by 21 local artists, HGA represents these established artists exhibiting contemporary fine art and fine craft. The Gallery's offerings include paintings, sculpture, ceramics, photography, textiles, jewelry, glass, metals, encaustic, enamel, and wood.

This program is supported, in part, by a grant from the Orange County Arts Commission (funding from the North Carolina Arts Council, a division of the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources.) We also thank Orange County Emergency Small Business Funding Program.

For further information check our NC Commercial Gallery listings, call the gallery at 919/732-5001 or visit (HillsboroughGallery.com).

Gallery C in Raleigh, NC, Features Works by David Addison Pickel

Gallery C in Raleigh, NC, will present New Oil Paintings by Addison, featuring works by David Addison Pickel, on view from May 1 - 31, 2022. A reception will be held on May 1, from 1-3pm.

David Addison Pickel, who signs his paintings using his middle name, finds his artistic inspiration in the bodies of water and beautiful landscapes that surround us, from the coasts of North and South Carolina to Page 32 - Carolina Arts, May 2022

Maryland's Eastern Shore to Canada's forested glades and further. An avid outdoorsman, Addison paints from sketches and photographs he makes while traveling. Born in 1956, Addison lived in several countries in Europe and Asia. For the last 24 years he has called Raleigh home.

Addison trained in visual arts and photography as an undergraduate at the Univercontinued above on next column to the right sity of Alaska. Later he studied fine art and design at Ohio University and received his Master of Science in Journalism.

This is Addison's first solo exhibition at Gallery C.

For further information check our NC Commercial Gallery listings, call the gallery at 919/828-3165 or visit (www. galleryc.net).

North Carolina State University in Raleigh, NC, Features Works by Martha Strawn

North Carolina State University in Raleigh, NC, is presenting Across the Threshold of India - Photographs by Martha Strawn, on view in the Robert K. Black and J. Ormond Sanderson Gallery, at the Gregg Museum of Art & Design, through Nov. 12, Sarasvati, Hindu goddess of the arts and knowledge, surrounds and permeates the mysteries of spice, taste, and art in Indian culture. One practice in honoring her spiritual foundation is to sanctify the space between physical and spiritual existence by the creation of evanescent drawings, which are typically made of rice flour carefully sprinkled on the ground in transitional spaces to create intricate patterns. Martha Strawn, visual ecologist and photographer, has documented the practice of making these "threshold drawings" (kolam or rangoli), and presents them at NC State's Gregg Museum of Art & Design in Across the Threshold of India—Photographs by Martha Strawn.

The designs have captivated her for over thirty years, resulting in image after image of these special diagrams drawn on the actual thresholds of Indian homes. They are usually created by the women of the family, and serve to symbolize the separation of secular and sacred spaces, and as a protection from evil, ill will or bad luck. The designs, often based on natural forms, may be used to separate rooms within a house, a home from the street, or a business from the bustle of the surrounding world. The patterns, which are often quite intricate, can often be found in other examples of Indian vernacular art such as tapestries, rugs, cloth, and architecture. The exhibition will include a selection of Strawn's photographs enhanced with examples of Indian culture and design from I the Gregg's permanent collection.

Martha Strawn, "Light Shaft," in a passageway in

"To discover and live in the immediacy of an ancient practice of art, life, and religion has been a truly humbling yet remarkable gift," Strawn says in the preface to her book. In addition to photography, Strawn has engaged in extensive research based on interviews with the women who make these diagrams, documenting Indian culture over a period of over thirty years.

Martha Strawn, "Modified Lotus," a Pongal diagram from Srirangam in Tamil Nadu, 1986.

Threshold designs may be created to mark a wide range of life's mileposts, such as fertility rituals, weddings, births, or deaths. Patterns and techniques are passed down through generations, from grandmother to granddaughter and vary from region to region. As Strawn has noted, "These diagrams are magical and mysterious in their complexity and in their simplicity."

Martha Strawn, a Professor of Art Emerita at the University of North Carolina in Charlotte, co-founded The Light Factory Contemporary Museum of Photography and Film, was a Fullbright fellow to India, and a National Endowment for the Arts fellow in photography. Her photographs have been exhibited worldwide, and in addition to the book, Across the Threshold of India: Art, Women and Culture, she is the author of Alligators: Prehistoric Presence in the American Landscape (1977), and (with Yi-Fu Tuan) Religion: From Place to Placelessness (2009).

For further information check our NC Institutional Gallery listings, call the Museum at 919/513-7244 or visit (https://gregg.arts. ncsu.edu/).

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, in Chapel Hill, NC, Features Works by Aaron Douglas and MFA Students

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, in Chapel Hill, NC, is presenting two new exhibits including: Modern Black Culture: The Art of Aaron Douglas, and Myth & Memory: Selected Works by the MFA Class of 2022, on view concurrently at Ackland Art Museum, through June 19,

Modern Black Culture explores how Aaron Douglas (1899-1979), one of the most important modernist artists of the Harlem Renaissance, gave visual form to the idea that Black American culture is a modern culture of diaspora. Douglas created figures embodying Pan-African ideas of Black achievement and creativity. He chronicled 20th century Black American culture and cultivated the self-image of Black Americans as a cosmopolitan cultural vanguard connected with Black people worldwide.

Through more than 40 paintings, prints, book and magazine illustrations, drawings, and other artworks, Modern Black Culture demonstrates how Douglas developed an immediately recognizable style and advanced the idea that modern Black American culture drew upon the music, dance, visual art, and faith traditions found in Black communities throughout the world. Public programs presented in conjunction with Modern Black Culture include an African American Trailblazers Mural Walk, a Juneteenth celebration, talks and

continued on Page 33